The beautiful motor car pictured above is the brilliant climax of fifty-four years of devotion to a single purpose: to build as fine a motor car as it is practicable to produce. Only from such long and such dedicated service to this ideal could come a motor car so inspiring in beauty—so magnificent in luxury . . . and so fine in performance. For nothing great can be created suddenly. We suggest that you see and drive this new Cadillac soon. You will find, we know, that it stands uniquely alone in all the things that make a motor car good and wonderful.

"The years seem literally to lift away" ELIZABETH ARDEN

GIVE 5 Minutes a Day!

TAKE 5 Years Away!

ELIZABETH ARDEN'S FIRMO-LIFT TREATMENT

ELIZABETH ARDEN'S Firmo-Lift Treatment asks only five minutes of your time daily, plus the uplifting touch of your own two hands, to help you lift, firm and smooth your maturing skin; to help erase wrinkling, sagging, puffiness and heaviness . . . those tell-tale signs that reveal the secret of your age.

For Firmo-Lift is the special Salon treatment that Miss Arden has adapted for your own use at home, to aid you in improving the elasticity of your skin and the vital tone of your supporting facial muscles.

Firmo-Lift is the basic reason why the exquisitely-cared-for clientele of Elizabeth Arden Salons look far younger than their years.

Press on! Mould in! Work up! These are the three commandments of the Firmo-Lift ritual. Follow it religiously, daily. The Treatment Lotion, a blend of restoring, toning oils and astringents, and its companion benefactor, Special Salon Treatment Oil, seem literally to lift your years away.

To accelerate Firmo-Lift's benefits, supplement your treatments with vitamin-enriched Ardena Perfection Cream. You will find the results immensely rewarding.

The Breakers

By AMY LYMAN PHILLIPS

THE BREAKERS, more glamorous than ever with its vistas of green velvet turf on one side and the sapphire sea and foaming white breakers on the other, its waving palms and tropical vegetation, has welcomed so many guests since mid-January that the capacity patronage does not need to be recorded.

The largest Winter Golf League tournament yet held brought a record number of members, with families and friends, here last month, and while many departed, more than the usual number stayed on until the first of this month. A few others will remain later in February to complete their visits, as also is true of several holiday visitors who will return for longer stays.

The event brought the greatest amount of entertaining ever known here, which, with the exception of the annual dinner dance at the Everglades Club, all was centered at The Breakers, with the annual banquet and distribution of prizes held following the finals on Friday, January 20. This was followed by dancing in the Terrace Garden until 1 o'clock, with many who had attended the "Salute to Eisenhower" dinner at the Palm Beach Biltmore coming here to enjoy dancing.

Attending the dinner to Eisenhower from The Breakers were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Wannop, Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Willett, Mrs. Henry V. Keller, Mrs. Arthur Lipper, Mrs. Lawrence Bell, Miss Amy Lyman Phillips and Arthur Ecker.

The Palm Beach Women's Golf Championship at the Palm Beach Golf Club, held February 7-11 with a galaxy of top women golf stars competing, was the third of the season's golf events, to be followed by the South Florida Amateur Championship, March 12-16.

Many Breakers guests will participate in these outstanding sports events.

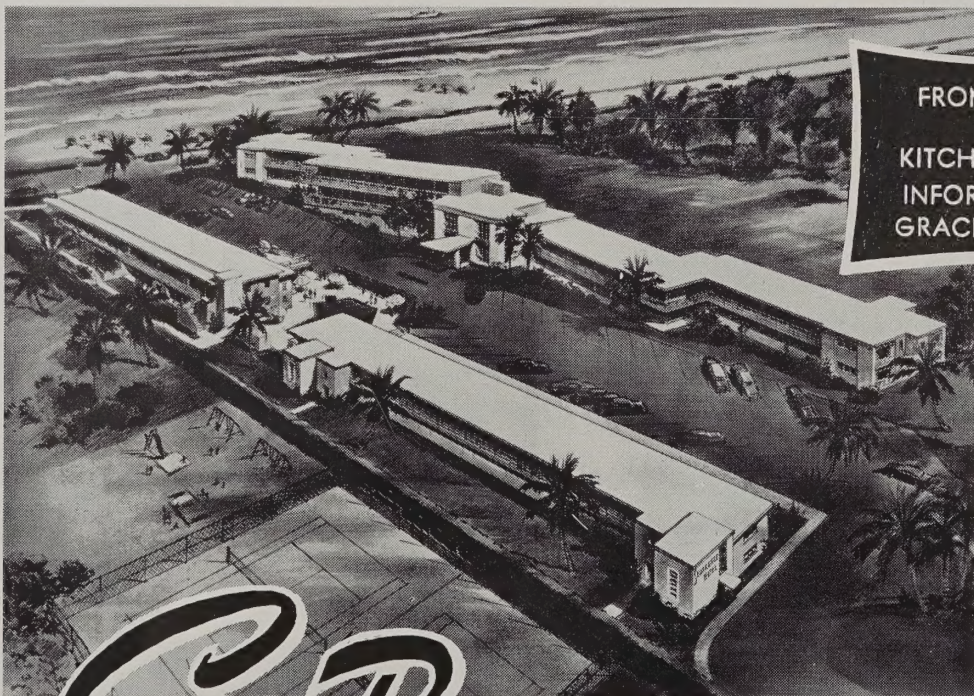

Golf, putting and bowling on the premises make The Breakers especially popular with sports-minded guests.

The Breakers not only appeals to guests in many ways, but to members of the Palm Beach villa colony and guests of other hotels, who find it a charming place to entertain at cocktails, the evening dances, with the combined charm of de luxe dinners preceding the Wednesday evening Galas, at which the hotel entertainment staff often is augmented by talented guests who furnish songs, piano music or other features.

The Saturday night Vaudeilles, too, have brought many from the villa colony to enjoy the program, which has always two features from Miami's entertainment world preceding the dancing. An extra hour of dancing is available on Gala nights, so this feature is appreciated.

There is great activity this season at The Breakers Cabana Club, where so many invite

WHERE WILL YOUR EXECUTOR BE...

... when the time comes to serve?

On an extended trip—perhaps even living, for a time—in a foreign country? In no position to take the quick action that often must be taken if the estate is not to lose money?

Possible—if you've named a relative or a friend. But impossible if you've named us. We make executorship a business—we don't take trips, or live in foreign countries—we're always available, ready to act at a moment's notice. May we talk to you and your lawyer about your plans?

He heads the Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada, with headquarters in Montreal, also the British Canadian Tobacco organization of England. His uncle, a noted marine painter, was Samuel Walters, and an entire room filled with his paintings is in the Boston Art Museum. Mr. Walters celebrated his 86th birthday while at The Breakers in January.

their friends to join them for a swim and enjoy one of Gabrielle's famous luncheons, served at the Cabana or at the seaside terrace garden.

Many of The Breakers guests are enjoying the races at Hialeah this season, making up parties to go down on the Biltmore Special, or driving down and having luncheon on the way.

The new Fronton here has added much to entertainment resources, The Breakers being well represented at its opening in January.

The Polo Club, with its many features, also is a drawing card for those who wish to entertain informally, and of course outstanding attractions to Breakers folk is the Society of the Four Arts, where children's movies are enjoyed, as well as the foreign movies on Fridays, the exhibitions and lectures, also the fine musical events.

The Four Arts library is another contribution enjoyed by many of the colony.

But The Breakers has so many resources, with its game nights, dance games, card parties and motion pictures, to say nothing of the tv room, which is jammed many nights.

It is interesting to note the arrival of so many annual visitors to The Breakers between February 1, when reservation books have been closed for some time, through Valentine's Day and February 15.

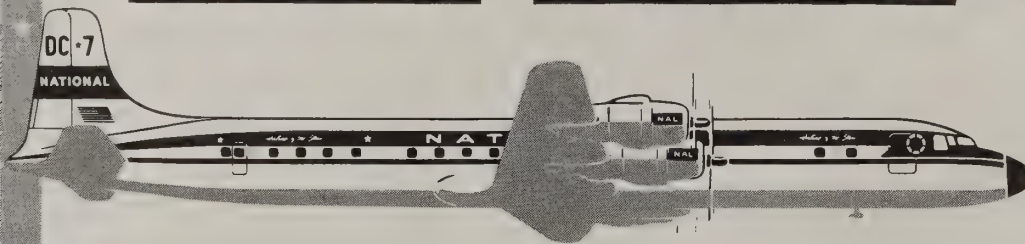

Some of the "oldest old-timers" coming before the latter date for long sojourns include: Dr. and Mrs. C. Scott Althouse of "The Best of Broadway," interpreted by Service League members and talented friends, was the featured entertainment at the cabaret, held in the Leon County Armory.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. John P. Brown, with Mrs. T. M. Hyde Jr. as co-chairman, this year's affair successfully rounded out funds used in the League's several cultural and welfare projects. The Bargain Box, a thrift shop operated year-around by members, is the only other money-making project of the group.

THE INN AT PONTE VEDRA is a mecca for vacationers from the frozen Northland—those anxious for a bit of sunshine and carefree days—where the only worry is whether that 90, scored on the beautiful 18-hole golf course today, can be improved tomorrow. And the major decision to be made is just what entree to choose from the menu or perhaps the time to meet for cocktails in the Cactus Room. Gracious living in a delightful setting!

As the ice gets thicker, the snow deeper and the roads slicker in the areas to the north, more and more Winter weary citizens are finding their way to Ponte Vedra. Some recent arrivals making their first visit have included Mr. and Mrs. Eben Robison of Hartsdale, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Pierce of Rumford, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Egnar Dunton Howe of Ponte Vedra and pro, Dave Drury, pause between sets.

Posselt and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Harragin of New York City.

Then, too, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Baxter of New York City enjoyed their first visit along with Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Eagles. Down for a golfing vacation from Pittsburgh were M. F. Nodurft, Jack Chivers, Ed Lickwar and Dan Heeter. Another foursome from Champaign, Ill., were Donald V. Dobbins, George L. Bennett, Harold C. Vance and Lyle H. Gallivan.

It seems that birthday celebrations have been prevalent in recent weeks, and, invariably, the honored guest has been surprised and delighted to be remembered on this extra special day. Mrs. J. E. Brand of Urbana, Ohio, was one of those persons. The time was luncheon and the setting was the Inn dining room where a cake with brightly burning candles was presented along with an off key, but heartfelt, rendition of "Happy Birthday."

Mrs. Dexter Lishon of Wayne, Pa., another Inn guest, was entertained at a surprise birthday party given by Jerome Fletcher of Jacksonville. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Lishon, others enjoying this affair were Mr. and Mrs. Wheelock Whitney and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. LeMaster and Mayhugh Courson of Ponte Vedra; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Fruehauf and Mrs. Mildred Baker Fletcher of Jacksonville. Following champagne, dinner and the traditional cake, it was dancing in the Cactus Room for this group.

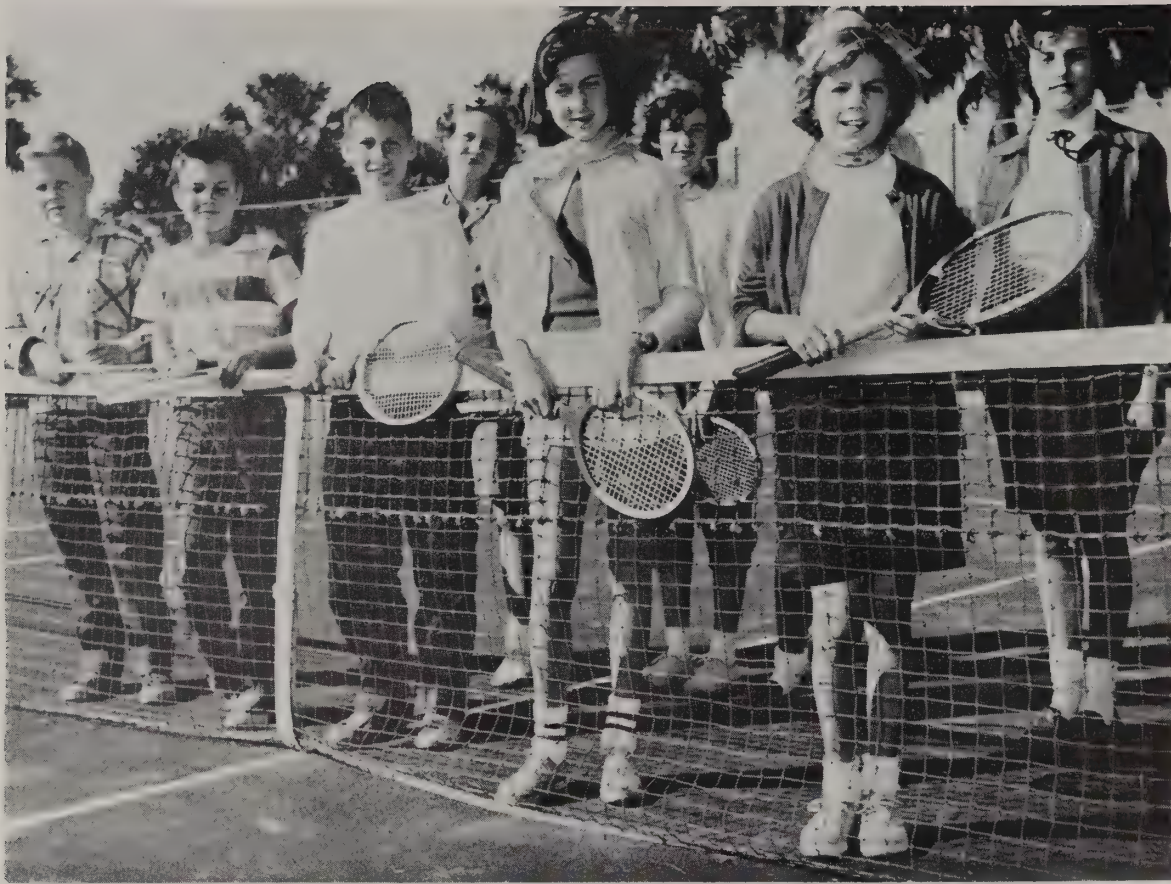

And, Homer Hartz, a member of the Colony, was host at one of the largest birthday dinner parties given in recent months. Many residents of Ponte Vedra gathered to extend best wishes to his charming wife on her special day. Mrs. Hartz insists that she was genuinely surprised and ever so amazed that friends managed to keep the all-important secret.

There have been other surprises around Ponte Vedra of a different nature, however. These have been enjoyed by returning guests as they have entered their favorite rooms on arrival at this resort. With the extensive renovation and redecoration program that has been underway for the past several months, many rooms have acquired the new look with colorful draperies, furniture, carpets and all that goes toward lending comfort and luxury. On the list of returning guests can be found among others Mrs. E. L. Brooks and Mrs. Charles M. Kirk of Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Jarl T. Sorensen of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Horstmann of Ridgewood, N. J.; and Mr. and Mrs. Morgan S. Whitely of York, Pa.

Other guests included quite a family group from Augusta, Ga., consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Brittingham, Mrs. Peter

Accompanying Mr. and Mrs. John Bullock of Cincinnati was Mrs. J. H. Roe, also of Lunching at The Surf Club is Miss Stephanie Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Peterson of Montclair, N.J., and Master Robbie Hruska, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hruska of Ponte Vedra.

Though the Golf Club may be the favorite spot these days for many, the new tennis courts have a special appeal for the youngsters here at Ponte Vedra. Each Saturday Pro, Dave Drury, conducts classes for younger members of the Colony and these bright eyed boys and girls come armed with racquets, boundless energy and unrelenting enthusiasm. Emil G. Meyer, head of one of the nation's largest electrical engineering and contracting firms engaged in guided missiles, radar research etc., takes to an old-time mode of transportation during his vacation at Camelback Inn on the desert. From Essex Fells, N.J., Mr. Meyer and his wife spent a month at the Inn before leaving for Persia and India on a combination business and pleasure jaunt. They estimate they spend only about two months of the year at Forrest Way, their estate, and have lived in some 60 countries of the world.

TRADITIONAL THINGS are a part of pleasant, gracious living, and because of such traditions, many guests return year after year to the Arizona desert, where at Camelback Inn all the inevitables of resort life have added magic in the dazzling sunlight, blue, blue skies, and its dramatic setting.

Each year former guests receive a calendar of all-important Red Letter events at Camelback, because many like to be on hand for particular annual parties and golf events.

One of these is the gala Valentine Ball that pays tribute to the date of Arizona's statehood, as well as the patron saint. Another is the Golddiggers Ball planned this year for March 10, a fabulous party with "gold rush" theme, one of the highlights of the Winter season anticipated by select socialites from the valley, as well as Inn guests.

On hand for another Valentine Ball are Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney of Old Westbury, L. I., and his vivacious wife, who arrived February 1 for two months. This year they brought along their son, Searle, to enjoy the desert and share his father's birthday celebration later in the month.

Renewing their acquaintance at the Ball will be the William Perkins of Rivermont, Lynchburg, Va., and the Glenn Hendricks of Brightwaters, L. I., here until March with their daughter. Long Island sun followers, too, are the Lloyd Gilmores of Valentine's Lane, Old Brookville, appropriately present for the ball.

The Roger Prossers of Tenafly will be among the dancers before they conclude their month's sun holiday, and the Charles E. Stokes Jr. of Trenton, returning for the event, still have two weeks of lazy living ahead.

It was match play in the putting tourney when Albert Stevens of Cragswold, Scarsdale, advertising manager of the American Tobacco Company, played against his wife on the lush putting greens at Camelback Inn. He was winner of the tourney from a large field of players and had five aces in one round, or as he quipped, "Five Lucky Strikes."

Ending a fleeting week's "get-together" from all points are Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Sutphen of Mathissen Park, Irvington-on-the-Hudson, the W. P. Lillards of Chicago, where he is president of Perkins Products, and the Marshall Matsons of Dallas.

Early February has also been the occasion for the Gainey Putting Tourney followed by a gay award and cocktail party, the Snowball Golf Tournament on neighboring Paradise Valley Country Club course, as well as the Jumping Cactus and Sombrero Tourneys with a party following, featuring Snowball's wedding to the Princess. Winner of a tourney with five aces was Albert Stevens, advertising manager of the American Tobacco Co., and he quipped that they were his "Five Lucky Strikes."

Two of the Inn's most avid putters who returned February 9 to soak up the warm sun on the Inn's lush putting greens are sisters — Mrs. Henry Oliver Smith of Buffalo and Miss Helen Foster. Their record for daily appearances was almost equalled by two close friends, Mrs. Paul Minder of Easton, Pa., and Mrs. H. K. Cain of Evanston, who are spending their desert month perfecting strokes. The Keystone State is the home, too, of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Saxman, golfing for two weeks from Latrobe, where he is secretary-treasurer of Latrobe Steel Co.

A popular area is that known as Sunshine Alley, the colorful poolside decks where guests are lured daily by its 80 degree temperatures, brilliant skies, and vistas of craggy mountains miles away. There the daily buffet luncheons served in the out-of-doors have become an institution with vacationers and valley socialites alike.

Delectable food is offered in colorful array on long buffet tables next to the sparkling pool. The friendly informality of the staff, garbed in gay southwestern costumes, bright umbrellas, and bonewarming sunshine create a relaxing atmosphere for guests who gather forenoon for sunlazing and tanning.

Often reluctant to break the spell, they will remain for the afternoon, broken only by dips in the pool and thirst quenchers from the nearby Cholla.

A dream shared with many men, finding the Famed Lost Dutchman Gold Mine in Superstition Mountains was a pastime for Ceburn Lee of Oaks Corners, N. Y., who sunned daily with Mrs. Lee when not prospecting.

Renewing friendships around the tables

A colorful career in the artillery and the U.S. Army is the proud past of Brig. Gen. Manus McCloskey of Wilmette, Ill., who vacationed at Camelback with his daughter, Sally. He is a graduate of West Point, Class of '98, and recalled being one of Dwight D. Eisenhower's instructors when he was a plebe.

were Christian Allers, member of the Harrison, N. Y., town council, Mrs. Allers, and the Robert Astes, 400 Park Avenue. Their Camelback stay gave them opportunity to visit, too, with George Hall, vice-president of the Downtown Athletic Club, New York City, at his Phoenix home, and with a Manhattan acquaintance, George Gaston, 1035 Fifth Avenue, Inn guest.

Doing the spectacular shops in nearby Scottsdale, the West's most Western town, and fashion show spectators at the town's famed Victorian Lulu Belle were Mrs. William Sperry, 825 Fifth Avenue, her daughter, Miss Emma Converse Davis; Mrs. Albert Stevens of Cragswold, Scarsdale, and Mrs. Emil G. Meyer of Forrest Way, Essex Fells, N. J.

The Meyers spent a month relaxing at the Inn between trips. Worldwide travelers, the prominent electrical industrialist and his wife had just returned from the deep South Pacific, Saudi Arabia, and are soon off on a combination business and pleasure jaunt to India and Persia.

Frequently the Scottsdale shops present lunch hour parades of desert resort wear around the pool, stressing the Southwest in color and design.

Among the spectators at a recent fashion show were newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Allen McNabb of Detroit, spending their honeymoon at the Inn. The bride is the former Margo Fisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fisher, president of the Fisher Body Works. The Inn is a favorite spot for honeymooners who find that the casas with their individual sun terraces are situated so that they can lose themselves or be friendly as they like.

A bride-to-be who found the poolside a favorite spot to relax was Chicago debutante, Miss Meryll Stephens of Lake Forest, who vacationed with her mother, Mrs. Henry Jay Stephens, shortly after her betrothal was announced at a formal party in the Windy City. The trip had a twofold purpose, for her fiancé, Peter Mars Feeney, and his father, Alan Feeney, reside on the desert near the Inn. His mother is Mrs. Mars Fleming of River Forest, of the Mars. Candy Co. renown. The senior Mr. Feeney is one of the nation's top Hereford stock authorities and former owner of the famed Milky Way Ranch in Phoenix.

The financial world has a good representation on the desert from Wall Street, which includes Henry Clancy, manager of Carl Loeb, Rhoades and Co., currently holidaying with his wife; Mr. and Mrs. George Kock of Garden City, Lasser Brothers; Howard Smith of DeCoppet and Doremus, sunning with Mrs. Smith from Oyster Bay, L. I.; Charles Bianchi of Cohu Investments with Mrs. Bianchi and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jacobus of Verona, N. J. Wall Street attorney Arthur Palmer and Mrs. Palmer of 910 Fifth Avenue, relaxed with the C. E. Mains.

From the Far West was a recent visitor, Walter J. Braunschweiger, past president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and executive vice-president of the Bank of America, with Mrs. Braunschweiger.

Loved by all as one of the most interesting guests has been Brig. Gen. Manus McCloskey, West Point graduate of the class of '98 who reminisced over his colorful artillery career daily with many sunlovers. One of his vivid recollections was teaching Dwight D. Eisenhower as a plebe at the Academy. He holidayed from Wilmete, Ill., with daughter, Sally.

Early February Inn guests and new neighbors on the slopes of Mummy Mountain in Paradise Estates are Vernon Stouffer, restaurant chain prexy with Mrs. Stouffer and Deanette, their daughter. They spent a week at the Inn while their new home is being readied for occupancy. The modern structure's tremendous picture windows overlook the Paradise Country Club golf course and the entire valley from its mountain setting.

Old timers at the business of relaxing on the desert are the L. J. Burkes of Chicago, where he is head of Foster Products, advertising displays. They haven't missed a season since their first in 1945.

Blown west by Lake Michigan's chilly blasts are Claude C. Reimenschneider of the Chicago Tramrail Association, here for a month of sunshine with his wife from Western Springs, Ill.; Mrs. Frederic Pellet of Oak Forest, spending February in the company of her son, Gilbert and his wife; and Iowans returning for their sixth season are Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Fleck.

Each year Inn guests join in observing the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hillenbrand of Batesville, Ind. Their golden wedding observation was held at the Inn February 11, 1952, when they brought 49 to the celebration. For years they have "back to Camelbacked," usually with children and grandchildren.

Maj. Gen. Royal Lord and Mrs. Lord, Lawrence Farms, Mt. Kisco, N. Y., began their third visit to the sunwashed desert on February 13, and are enjoying one of their favorite pastimes, horseback rides over the winding desert trails.

Canadians who followed the birds south are Coleman Hall, prominent British Columbia hotel man, Mrs. Hall, and their son, Brent, and the F. H. Russells with Beverly, all of Vancouver; and Miss Nancy Martin of Winnipeg is here for a month.

It is always family time at Camelback. Relaxation can be an accomplished fact, thanks to Hopalong College, unique sun school named for the children's favorite actor. Two full-time counselors keep tots from 4 to 12 occupied with a full vacation schedule of their own . . . pack trips, swim meets, hikes, gymkhanas. This leaves parents free to follow their whim of the moment out on the Arizona desert, where all is right with the world.

Newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Allen McNabb of Detroit select desert from the daily outdoor buffet at the sparkling pool of Camelback Inn. The bride is the former Miss Margo Fisher, daughter of the William Fishers of Grosse Pointe, president of the Fisher Body Company. They spent their honeymoon at the Inn following a mid-January wedding.

By ERNEST G. FRIEZ JR.

NOT AN EMPTY ROOM this Winter at the Royal Palms Inn has set an all time high for guests old and new. All guest rooms are in detached cottages to insure quiet relaxation and each has a large studio window framing a magnificent desert panorama. Some rooms have wood burning fireplaces and private patios with worlds of closet space.

Among the newcomers who have occupied space at the Inn

this Winter are Mr. and Mrs. William A. Cotter of Manhasset, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Grande of Seattle, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Daniel of Healdsburg, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lindemann and their three children and the John Pritzlaff Jr., family all of Milwaukee, Wisc.; Dana Rood Jr., of Carmel, Calif.; and Mrs. A. C. Stevens of New York City.

Acres of citrus and date groves surrounding the various buildings serve to distinguish this resort from others here in the desert. Here grapefruits, lemons, and four kinds of oranges supply the guests with daily fresh fruit. If they choose they may go directly outside of their cottages and pick their own.

Tile — loads of it — imported from Spain is seen all over the property. It lines the heart shaped sweetheart swimming pool which is as blue as the sky above. The "Salud Amigos" Cantina, a spacious cocktail lounge which adjoins the swimming pool, is the scene of gay nocturnal activity. On another part of the property near the stable and tennis courts is another pool — this one the usual rectangle shape. A nearby thatched remada lends atmosphere to the barbecues which are often held here.

Among those on the old timer guest list are C. E. Gallagher of Bayonne, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. Basil T. Church of Glenview, Ill.; Jesse T. Mills of Scarsdale, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brannan of Denver, Colo.; Mr. and Mrs. George Scott of Berkeley, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Succop of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Treadway of Bristol, Conn.; and Mrs. Theodore Black of Sands Point, New York.

"Wishing will make it so," says Mrs. John Enders Mann of Milwaukee, Wis., sitting beside a wishing well in the patio of the Royal Palms Inn, Phoenix, Ariz.

THE WOMAN'S EXCHANGE in the Old Street is the setting each Thursday for luncheon in the famous old gardens, and the favorite daily tea-time rendezvous for St. Augustine residents and visitors.

The Exchange was founded by a group of leaders of society in 1893, as a means of providing an outlet for the quantities of rare and lovely Spanish drawn-work done by the women of Minorcan, Spanish and Italian descent. Since then the Exchange has grown and prospered, still maintains its shop. In addition it acts as custodian of the Treasury building, a landmark built by the King of Spain in 1690, purchased from the Spanish Grandees by Dr. Seth Parker for his home, and donated to the city by his grand-daughter, Miss Anna Burt.

Mrs. Tucker Gibbs is president of the board of managers this year, carrying on a family tradition of more than 100 years of philanthropic and charity work in the town. Her grandmother was a charter member of the Exchange. Another charter member, Mrs. Reginald White, is now Board Chairman, takes an active part in the work of the group.

Trinity Church makes a picturesque background for the cut-flower booth at the fair, with Mrs. R. Gentry White, right, acting as saleslady to Mrs. Vernon A. Lockwood, at left, Langston Moffett and Captain Tucker C. Gibbs, U.S.N. (ret).

"Shades of Scheherezade" will be the theme of the Junior Service League fashion show at the Hotel Ponce de Leon on February 18. This much-anticipated annual event will be more brilliant than ever, the oriental theme lending itself to beautiful and elaborate settings and exotic costumes for the harem, and dancing girls.

Mrs. Reuben J. Plant Jr., is general chairman, and Mrs. Wallace Mussallem is co-chairman. Other League members who are taking an active part as committee chairmen are Mrs. Jennings Dumas, Mrs. Malcolm L. Stephens Jr., Mrs. Herbert Wiles, Mrs. M. M. Palm Beach's Winter Colony

By WILMA SPENCER

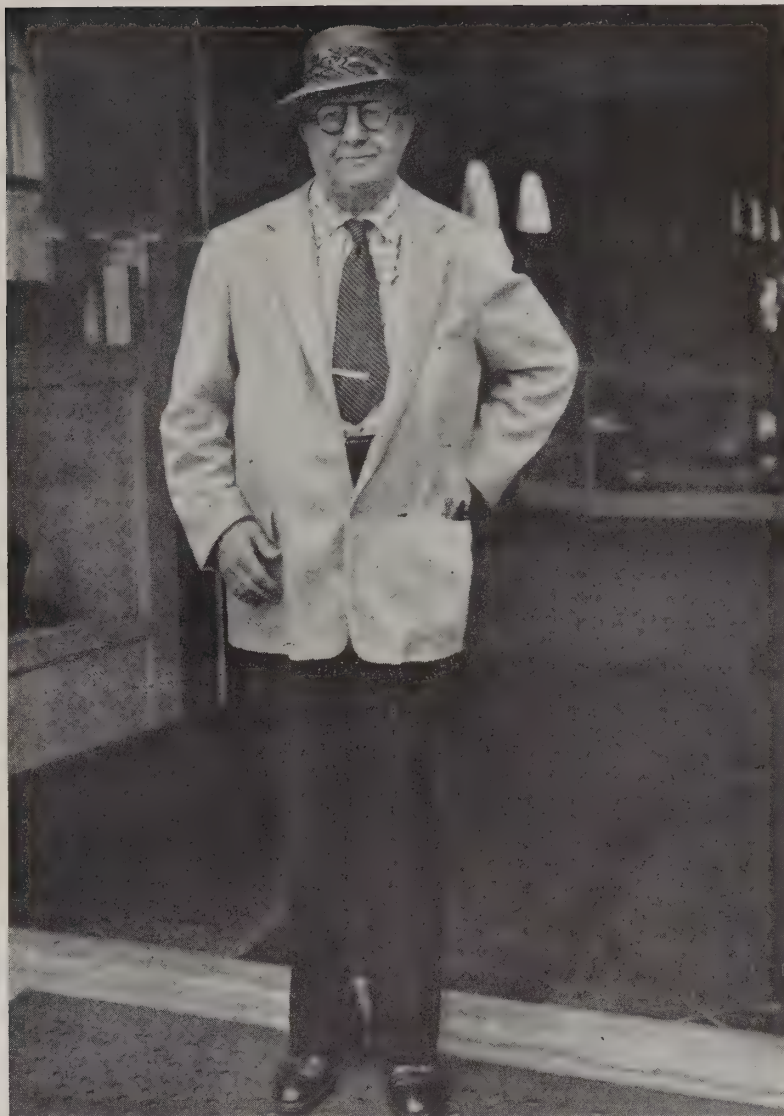

PALM BEACH has been the delightful gathering place for many prominent guests during the mid-Winter season. There have been several weddings and engagements announced, and many parties given.

The wedding of the Earl of Porchester, only son of the Earl of Carnarvon, to blue-eyed Jean Wallop, of Big Horn, Wyoming, in the chapel of New York's St. James Episcopal Church on January 7, was of special interest to Palm Beachers, as the Earl of Carnarvon is a frequent Winter visitor to Palm Beach. Immediately following the wedding, Lord Carnarvon came to Palm Beach to spend some time with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Shevlin at "Bahati," their seaside villa. Lord Carnarvon's daughter, Lady Penelope, and her husband, Girret Van Der Woude, also came down at the same time for a Winter holiday at La Coquille.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter G. Robinson of North Ocean Boulevard have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sallie Taylor Robinson, to William Arthur Torrey, of Montreal, Quebec, Canada. The wedding is to take place in the early Spring.

The engagement of Miss Mary Brent Kniffin, daughter of Mrs. D. Russell John of Dunbar Road and Howard S. Kniffin Jr., of Hewlett, N. Y., to Robert Dinsmore Huntington Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Huntington of El Brillo Way and Upper St. Regis, N. Y., was also announced in late January by Miss Kniffin's parents. Their nuptials will take place in June.

Another engagement that has created much interest both locally and in the North was that of Mrs. Elizabeth Maitland McCulloch of New York City and Port Washington, L. I., to Louis Clarke Anthony, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Tate Anthony Sr., of South Lake Trail and Burkhaven, N. H. Mrs. McCulloch is the daughter of Mrs. David Hugh McCulloch and the late David Hugh McCulloch. The bride-to-be's father was a leading pioneer in naval aviation. Her maternal grandfather, Robert Maitland Fair, was a partner of Marshall Field and Company. Mr. Anthony is the grandson of Louis S. Clarke, a pioneer of Palm Beach, and a pioneer automobile manufacturer, and the late Mrs. Clarke. Mr. Clarke's paternal grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. James Rembert Anthony of Washington, Georgia and West Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Reback, of Eggertsville, N. Y., who spend part of each season at The Whitehall, have also announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Judith Ann Reback, to Dr. Theodore Robert Goodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Goodman of New York City. Their wedding will take place in the Eggertsville home of Mr. and Mrs. Reback on February 18. The bride-to-be's mother is the well-known author, Taylor Caldwell.

A mid-January wedding was that of Mrs. Muriel M. Landon and Alvin W. Boettcher, who were married on January 12 in the Royal Poinciana Chapel. The couple have an apartment on Brazilian Avenue until their new home on Barton Avenue is ready for occupancy.

There have been many dinner parties given recently. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. De Fina gave a small dinner party at "Vita Serena," their home on Clarendon Avenue, in honor of William Shirer, a guest speaker for the Palm Beach Round Table.

The Society of the Four Arts Presents PAUL GAUGUIN

"Self Portrait against Flowered Background" (oil)

Lent by Vincent W. van Gogh, Holland

GEMEENTE MUSEA VAN AMSTERDAM

By EMILIE KEYES

THE WALLS OF THE SOCIETY OF THE FOUR ARTS, which have blazed with the color of many distinguished exhibitions during its 20 years as a Palm Beach cultural center, are now aglow with what is probably the rarest collection of paintings ever to be presented by this organization.

Not only is the one-man show of works by Paul Gauguin outstanding in its scope and quality of the paintings, but this marks the first time the Society of the Four Arts has initiated an exhibition to be seen in Palm Beach before New York.

The Paul Gauguin show now graces the galleries that in recent years have housed one-man exhibitions by such masters as Matisse, Soutine, Redon, Van Gogh.

In fact, according to Allan McNab, Four

Arts director, the plan to assemble the Gauguin collection had its inspiration last year when as adviser to the Four Arts art committee, he learned that it would be possible to obtain the loan of eight Gauguins from the collection of Vincent W. Van Gogh, nephew of the famed artist of that name.

With these eight as a nucleus, Mr. McNab and the art committee, headed by Mrs. Harold Fowler, went to work and assembled the rare show that opened February 3 to remain until March 4 at the Society of the Four Arts.

Part of the show from here will later go to the Lowe Gallery. At the close of the exhibition there, the paintings shown at the Lowe will go on to New York, there to be supplemented by a number of others from the New York area. It will open April 3 at the Wildenstein Galleries for six weeks.

Art critics have hailed the Four Arts and the Wildenstein exhibitions as outstanding events of the year in art circles.

Culled from the finest public and private collections in this country, and from overseas, the exhibition is highly representative of the work of the famed French post-Impressionist, covering the span of his most productive years. There are 24 oils, ranging over a period of some 18 years. The earliest is a "Copenhagen Winter Scene," lent by the Knoedler Gallery, a painting that seems strange to those who associate the name of Gauguin so closely with the warmth of the tropics as expressed in his Tahitian works.

The latest, painted in 1902 only a year or less before his death, is the well known "L'Appel," a Tahitian landscape with figures, lent by the Cleveland Museum of Art, a gift from the Hanna Fund and Leonard C. Hanna to that institution.

Among the most interesting paintings are two self portraits, one lent by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shields, Winter residents at the Everglades Club, and one from the Van Gogh collection; also from the Van Gogh collection, the unusual "Van Gogh Painting Sunflowers."

From the Chester Dale collection has come the two rare pieces, the only Gauguin sculptures in the exhibition. The "Pere Paillard," a 27-inch wood carving of the 1892 Tahitian period is the one sculptured figure. The other is a pair of wooden sabots, made and actually worn by the artist during his Brittany period, exquisitely carved on top.

There are 10 watercolors, three drawings, and 27 prints, including monotypes, etchings and woodcuts, chiefly from the Rosenwald collection in the section of the National Gallery devoted to prints and located in Jenkintown, Pa.

A large number of individuals, museums and galleries have made possible the exhibition here by lending works. Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Philip D. Armour, Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, Mrs. Paul Moore, Mrs. John S. Pillsbury and Chester Dale of Palm Beach, all from the art committee, assisted in obtaining loans of important works.

In addition to this committee and Mr. Van Gogh, others assisting in the assembling of the show included: W. Sandberg, director, and H. L. C. Jaffe of the Stedelijk Museum, Amsterdam; Vladimir Visson of New York; Miss Elizabeth (Continued on Page 46)

The monotypes, etchings and woodcuts came mainly from the Rosenwald Collection of the National Gallery of Art at Jenkintown, though several private collectors assisted. Several collectors sent works anonymously.

From the brilliant opening preview reception on the afternoon of February 3, assembling a cross-section of Palm Beach's art world, the show has attracted many visitors and is expected to continue to do so until its close March 4.

After the closing here the works lent by the following will be sent to the Lowe Gallery: National Gallery, Art Institute of Chicago, Minneapolis Institute of Art, and those from Holland. A number of those lent privately will be included.

Palm Beach SALUTES The President

ALL PHOTOS BY RAY HOWARD
 Senator William F. Knowland, left, Republican of California, speaker of the evening and Earl E. T. Smith, dinner chairman and Republican National Finance committeeman for Florida, who presided.

SELDOM IN PALM BEACH — and certainly not this season — has so large and representative a crowd from the Winter colony gathered together as was present at the "Salute-to-Eisenhower" dinner on the occasion of the third anniversary of the President's Inauguration.

Known as a Republican stronghold, Palm Beach turned out to salute the President, hear Senator William F. Knowland of California advocate a strong foreign policy, and learn via the telecast that President Eisenhower was not yet ready to commit himself.

Joined by GOP notables from Washington and Florida, and even by an official representative from a foreign country, they jammed the big Palm Beach Biltmore dining room to overflowing, raced through their $100-a-plate dinner to be ready to applaud Senator Knowland, to listen in on other coast-to-coast "Salute-to-Eisenhower" dinners on the closed television circuit, and to hear the President.

Directly in front of the long speakers' table, presided over by indefatigable Earl E. T. Smith, who spearheaded the entire Florida dinner project, was a long table presided over by Mrs. Merriweather Post, the former Mrs. Joseph E. Davies. Mrs. Post was making her first public appearance since her return to Palm Beach to open "Maralago" for the season. Flanked by Grover Loening, aviation pioneer, and Schuyler Parsons, author of "Untold Friendships," she headed a table including among others her houseguests, Lady Birley of England and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt.

Hers was only one of dozens of tables dotting the big room where those prominent in the resort's Winter life were noted. Among those noted here and there . . . Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. The Four Arts Gardens

Their Restoration Is
Garden Club's Great Project

ALL PHOTOS BY McCLELLAN

Gateway to the Society of the Four Arts gardens from Royal Palm Way down path leading to Four Arts library.

THE SOCIETY OF THE FOUR ARTS gardens are on the brink of a new era. Planned some 15 years ago with the primary purpose of serving as a series of demonstration gardens illustrating types of planting suitable to the tropical landscape, they are now to be restored with the same general objective in mind.

To the general public that has enjoyed the gardens down through the years, it may come as a surprise that the gardens are in such need of restoration. According to library officials, they are a mecca for sightseers.

Frequently artists may be found with easel or sketchbook using some nook as a subject for a painting.

Especially is this true of the colorful Chinese garden that graces the cover of this issue of Palm Beach Life. As a matter of fact, this garden, inspired originally by the Garden of Smiling Harmony of the Summer palace at Peiping, is to remain intact. Given by Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, honorary president of the Garden Club of Palm Beach, it is the only one of the series that has been maintained by the original donor and retained virtually its original character.

It has been a matter of concern to the Garden Club, which has sponsored the gardens through the years, that since the war years intervened, the gardens have lost much of their original beauty and value for demonstration purposes. Now steps are definitely under way for an over-all restoration project.

Mrs. William Y. Sayad, Garden Club president, represents that body on the Society of the Four Arts board. The gardens committee includes: Mrs. George S. Rasmussen, chairman; Mrs. Edward H. White Jr., Mrs. John W. Van Ryn, Mrs. Kemp Caler, Mrs. Charles R. Wilson and Mrs. J. Edward Farrar.

This doorway leads nowhere as it is part of a wall originally built for the garden by Mrs. John S. Phipps, who planned to demonstrate plantings in a Spanish patio.

Another view of Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse's Chinese Garden, which is pictured on the cover of this issue of Palm Beach Life.

Last season the club began amassing a fund to cover not only the expensive maintenance, but allow for employment of a professional landscape architect to draft a plan for the restoration. Contract was recently signed with Richard K. Webel of Umberto Innocenti-Richard K. Webel of Roslyn, L. I., who has already begun the task. The plan is expected to be ready for presentation to the annual meeting in April.

The successful "house and garden" tours of last Spring are to be repeated March 11, with a new series of homes to be open that Sunday afternoon, as means of raising funds for the work.

The architect is preparing a general layout which will show the individual gardens fitted into an over-all scheme, with plan for both the ground area and the garden compositions, detailing the character of each composition with type of planting required.

According to Garden Club plans, members of the gardens committee will supervise the work, to be done by the professional maintenance staff, with the idea that the work will be truly representative of the knowledge and work of the club members.

First contribution by the members to the actual work was made last Spring when a group spent a Sunday at work in the gardens, with their husbands, the latter doing the actual labor of installing a sprinkling system.

In addition to Mrs. Woodhouse, the original gardens were planned and established by the late Dr. Edmund LeRoy Dow, Mrs. John S. Phipps, the late Mrs. Clifford Vail Brokaw, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Kay, Mrs. Joseph Frederick Gunster and Hugh Dillman, first president of the Society of the Four Arts, and a Garden Club member.

Mrs. Woodhouse's garden is featured by its Moon Gate, its Chinese figures, and its exotic plantings, including a clusia tree with aerial roots, the triphasia, a native of Indo-China, and other rarities. This garden was awarded the bronze medal from the Garden Club of America.

Immediately South of the Chinese garden, Dr. Dow executed a jungle garden. Keenly interested in tropical horticulture, he was also largely responsible for development of interest in the labeling of plants and trees on the Bethesda Church grounds. Though heavily overgrown and rather run down, the jungle garden still suggests its original purpose.

Many persons assume that the attractive white wall beyond the garden is that of a house. It was built as background for the garden Mrs. Phipps constructed next door to illustrate plantings appropriate in the patio of a house of the then prevailing Spanish architecture.

At the far South corner Mrs. Brokaw had a Colonial garden, while opposite there is still the shrine that was the focal point of interest in the garden Mr. and Mrs. Kay established to demonstrate tropical fruit plantings.

Mrs. Gunster termed her spot a "Moonlight Garden." The area and part of that where the Dillman planting was located is now the setting for a green sward that is set up with stone benches and statuary.

In addition to these gardens the Garden Club has assumed responsibility for the area east of the library and the stretch to the North. In addition to the actual beautification and maintenance work the club plans eventually to develop a listing and catalogue of all the important plants in the gardens to serve as part of a garden section for the library.

Though the club cannot hope to restore the gardens to their original elegance and magnificence, Mrs. Sayad explained, it is the club's great desire that they be made beautiful and horticulturally interesting in the tradition established by the original donors.

HARD ON THE HEELS of the Symphony Club's gala ball in the new clubhouse at Hialeah race course, came the opening of the "Track of the Flamingoes" and the opera "Cosi Fan Tutti" on the same day. What a day . . . murder but fun!

Anent the second annual Symphony Ball — beautiful brunette Jane Shaffer was this year's chairman, so perhaps that's why Hialeah was chosen as the locale. Jane and husband, E. E. Dale Shaffer, are turf enthusiasts whose thoroughbreds race at Hialeah. In their handsome La Gorce Island home, they have shelves of trophies won by their stables at various tracks.

At the Symphony Ball at Hialeah: Mr. and Mrs. John Perry Jr. of Palm Beach and Colonel and Mrs. Frank Clarke of Canada and Miami Beach. Colonel Clarke is a steamship magnate and entertained Sir Winston Churchill when he visited Miami some years ago. Both women wore black. Madelon Calais, in a white Dior creation appliqued with black jeweled leaves, is escorted by Gary Kullack of Germany and New York. Her wrap is ermine.

Next: Mrs. E. E. Dale Shaffer, chairman of the Symphony Ball, in a white peau de soie gown with crimson fichu and matching great coat designed for her by Miami's Mr. Wyatt in the Shaffer's racing colors, is escorted by Mr. Shaffer. Next: Mrs. Edwin Lissberger, Winter colonist from New York, in a black gown, and Mrs. Robert Armstrong, Wintering at the Surf Club, wearing apple blue satin beaded and jeweled, with a lavender underskirt,

For the ball, Jane carried out their racing colors, crimson and white, in the elegant gown and great coat designed for her by Miami's own Mr. Wyatt. The white peau de soie had a wide skirt and a fichu of scarlet satin which crossed in front and ended in a French bow in back. The handsome great coat was lined in crimson and appliqued with white lace.

More than 450 guests dined, danced and heard a program of music by University of Miami's Symphony Orchestra at this ball. Patrons of the Symphony Club donated $1,000 for a "Golden Note" table. Centerpieces on these tables were a bar of music peeping out of colorful Spring flowers. Dramatic sight from the clubhouse was the gorgeous flamingoes, floodlighted on their island in the infield lake in all their pink beauty.

The Philip Mallorys were Golden Note hosts. Mrs. Mullory is advisory chairman of the Symphony Club, and wore a gown of white lace with delicate silver embroidery. Mrs. Comer Kinball, vice-president, had on a strapless lilac sheath with petal design of sequins on the bodice.

Mrs. Mitchell Wolfson, president of the club, wore a stunning bronze strapless sheath of brocade; Madelon Reid, who entertained 27 guests, sported a Dior creation of white tulle appliqued with black sequined leaves.

Guests at the Jefferson Wynnes Golden Note table included the Robert Armstrongs, the Edwin Lissbergers, song composer Harry Tierney and Mrs. Frank Edson.

Down from Palm Beach for the ball were Mr. and Mrs. John Perry Jr., who were in a group with Col. and Mrs. Frank Clarke.

Other Golden Note-ers were restaurateur Howard Johnson and Mrs. Johnson, Amory Haskell, Arnold Hangar, Arthur Vining Davis, Eugene Mori, president of Hialeah, the Dan Rices.

Lovely Nancy Greene, decorations chairman, whirled around the dance floor with husband Bob. Her graceful white chiffon was heavily beaded and had floating angel wings.

Opening day at Hialeah was "well suited" with feminine turf fans in smart tailleurs and more hats than are often seen in Miami. Early arrivals for luncheon on the terrace before post time were William Veeneman, chairman of the board at Churchill Downs, Mrs. Veeneman, their daughter, Mary (Mrs. William Tway) and Mrs. Charles E. Wilson, wife of the Secretary of Defense.

Vivacious Jessie Wilson has slimmed down and was wearing a Delft blue taffeta suit with navy bead trimming on the collar, cuffs and pockets. Her hat was a pink ribbon affair and most becoming.

She is here at her Surf Club apartment and said that Mr. Secretary hopes to join her February 1.

In the luncheon and box party given by John C. Clark, former president of Hialeah, and Mrs. Clark, were Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, president of the National Geographic Society, Mrs. La Gorce, Mrs. W. Alton Jones, whose husband is head of Cities Service, and the Harold Matzingers, who winter on Indian Creek Island.

The La Gorses recently opened their home on Lakeview Drive in Miami Beach and entertained their grandson, Ensign Byron Bruce Newell Jr., and his bride, Ingrid, over a week-end.

Mrs. Edward S. Moore, whose Circle M horses race at Hialeah, was introducing her step-granddaughter and husband, Lord and Lady Porchester, to friends. The Porchesters are honeymooning at the Golden Strand Hotel for a month before they go to Big Horn, Wyoming, and the ranch of Jean's father, Oliver Wallop.

His Lordship is tall and handsome with brown hair and big blue eyes; his bride is exceptionally pretty with light brown hair and hazel eyes. She is tall, slender and shapely, and her ecru linen dress on opening day was one of the smartest seen. It buttoned down the front with large brown buttons and had a half belt of self material in back.

Their romance might be called "Earl's son marries Earl's niece!" They are fourth cousins. Lord Porchester is the son of the Earl of Carnarvon and his mother is an American. Jean is the niece of the Earl of Portsmouth and was raised in this country. Lord "Porchy" was a favorite escort of Princess Margaret and has a stable of thoroughbreds in England.

The Alfred DeCozens, stable owners, and daughter, Charlotte, were in a front row box. They are just down from New Jersey at their Surf Club apartment for the season.

Others in the clubhouse and lunching on the terrace were Mrs. Floyd Best, who spent the Summer in Europe; the Charles McAdams; the Alfred Kremps; the Ralph Crums; the Dick Lunn (she is the former Liz Whitney Person); the Bart Ruddys, annual Winter colonists from Utica, N. Y., in Miami Beach.

First nighters at the Opera Guild's presentation of "Cosi Fan Tutti" were dazzling in jewels, orchids, furs and elegant finery. The Walter Olsons, benefactors of the Guild, had with them their houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. Vitus Houha of Chicago and California. Mrs. Olson's royal purple satin had a gold lace bodice; her flowers were white orchids and her wrap white ermine.

Marcia (Mrs. George Pawley), president of the Guild, wore chi-chi red taffeta, short in front and long in the back. She was escorted by that popular bachelor about town, Dick Walters.

Dr. Arturo di Fillipi, head of the Guild, was buzzing about the foyer before curtain time with his petite Lee, whose white tulle, beaded in blue, became her. Mrs. Garland McNutt was waiting until the last minute for son Garland and his attractive wife, Joan.

Down for opera from Wheeling, W. Va., were Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Steber, parents of lovely opera star Blanche Steber, who co-starred with Eleanor Thebom in Cosi. They were houseguests of Comdr. and Mrs. Charles Mills at their home in Miami Beach.

After the performance opera goes and stars adjourned to the Top o' the Columbus for the Stars Midnight Supper, an annual event. Helen Williams, chairman of the supper party, greeted guests in a simple and beautiful blue-green satin topped with white fox. She controlled music, claimed waiters and generally supervised with her usual efficiency.

Her "aides" were Mrs. George Kennedy, whose white taffeta was beaded front and back; Mrs. Radford Crane, Jane Fisher, Mrs. Edward Claughton, Mrs. Edwin Wenndorf.

Dr. and Mrs. George Menninger, new life members of the Guild ($1,000) attended both opera and supper. Other new life members are the Fred Hoopers of Coral Gables (they have a stable of horses and their Hoop Jr. won the Kentucky Derby a few years back); Mrs. Nelson Swift Morris of Paris, whose ropes of pearls, diamond earrings and brooch of emeralds and diamonds were a conversation piece. Her late husband was of the Swift meat packing clan.

Mary Jane and Lino Sertel "warmed" their beautiful new town house on Southeast Fifteenth Road with a huge cocktail dance for 300 . . . and the house wasn't crowded!

The enormous living room is done in black and white with antique Italian satin draperies and huge mirror behind the black and white bar. Dancing was in the outdoor patio, hot canapes circulated and guests made the "grand tour" of the house. Their eyes popped when they saw the Sertels clothes closet . . . practically a city block long!

Claire Hayden, Mrs. Spratt Mangus, Mrs. F. Rouse Smith, Mrs. Charles Morehead, Mrs. Don Allen and Mrs. D. E. Wells aided and abetted the hostess with guests and guest book.

Sailing Baruch, brother of Elder Statesman, Barney Baruch, made one of his rare party appearances with his Lenore. Arthur Vining Davis escorted his "Girl Friday," pretty Evelyn Mitchell; Mrs. Seymour Owens of Palm Beach and New York was squired by Baron Hans von Wackerbarth.

Mary Jane's pink beaded sheath was strapless and she wore white orchids. Eddie Doerr Jr., who helped her decorate the house, brought his charming mother, Mrs. Eddie Doerr of N. Bay Road.

Distinguished visitor here for ten days as the guest of Cornelius Vanderbilt at the apartment of Mrs. F. Kyle Ebersole and the Surf Club was charming Laura Lou Brookman, managing editor of the Ladies Home Journal. With her was associate editor of public affairs for the Journal, Virginia Price.

Walter Resce (Rainbow Pictures) and his Ruth entertained at a small cocktail party for the visitors at their Coconut Grove home. Guests included Senator George Smathers, Sonny Ebersole, Bebe Rebozo, who is a close friend of Vice-President Richard Nixon.

Most spectacular private party of the season... so far... was the luau Paula and Charles (Bake) Baker gave at their fascinating home in Coconut Grove to celebrate the 20th birthday of the house, Java Head.

Exactly 20 years ago they gave a cocktail party on the foundation and christened the corner stone. At the luau, a small stool stood in front of "Miss Java Head's" stone on which were a bottle of vintage champagne and a long-stemmed glass!

A gigantic bonfire was reflected in the pool and beside the fire the luau pits held roast pig and yams. Party dress for "the girl," as Paula lovinly spoke of the house, was huge colored fish hanging in the moon gate doors. The Bakers' daughter, Pam (Mrs. Franklin Johnson) in grass skirt, bare feet and gay blouse, hung leis about guest's necks as they arrived. There were tiny straw hats for the men and bottles of perfume attached to a miniature surf board for the "Hula girls."

Artist Chris Clarke, who painted the fantastic murals in the Bakers' dining room 20 years ago, flew over from his houseboat in Tampa for the party. (The murals depict people of the lands the Bakers visited on the world cruise when they met.)

What makes a party go? Betty and Al Kremp have the secret. Their dinner dance at the Surf Club was one of the going-est parties you ever did see.

Cocktail hour was in the new enclosed patio and the seated dinner in the main dining room. There were "rules"... men must dance with women at other tables; the sixth dance was a Leap Year one with the "girls" cutting in.

Mrs. Andrew Sordoni was regal in mauve lace. Her husband is former State Senator from Pennsylvania and now national president of the Three A's (American Automobile Association). They were at a table with the Earl Reeds, the P. B. (Spratt) Magnuses, and the Lino Sertels.

Yvonne and Jeff Ford, who recently opened their home on Pinetree Drive, were chatting with Larry Haugen and his cousin, Wilbur Haugen, Larry's guest at his Surf Club apartment. Yvonne was showing off her full length ranch mink, present from Jeff. "Never expected to wear it in Miami!" she laughed.

A few days after the Kremp party, Larry and Wilbur hosted a cocktail dance at the Surf for 600! Alfred Barton's houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Aldredge, accompanied him to the Haugen's party. Mr. Aldredge is director of the Art Museum in Scranton and could be that he will become Lowe Gallery's next head.

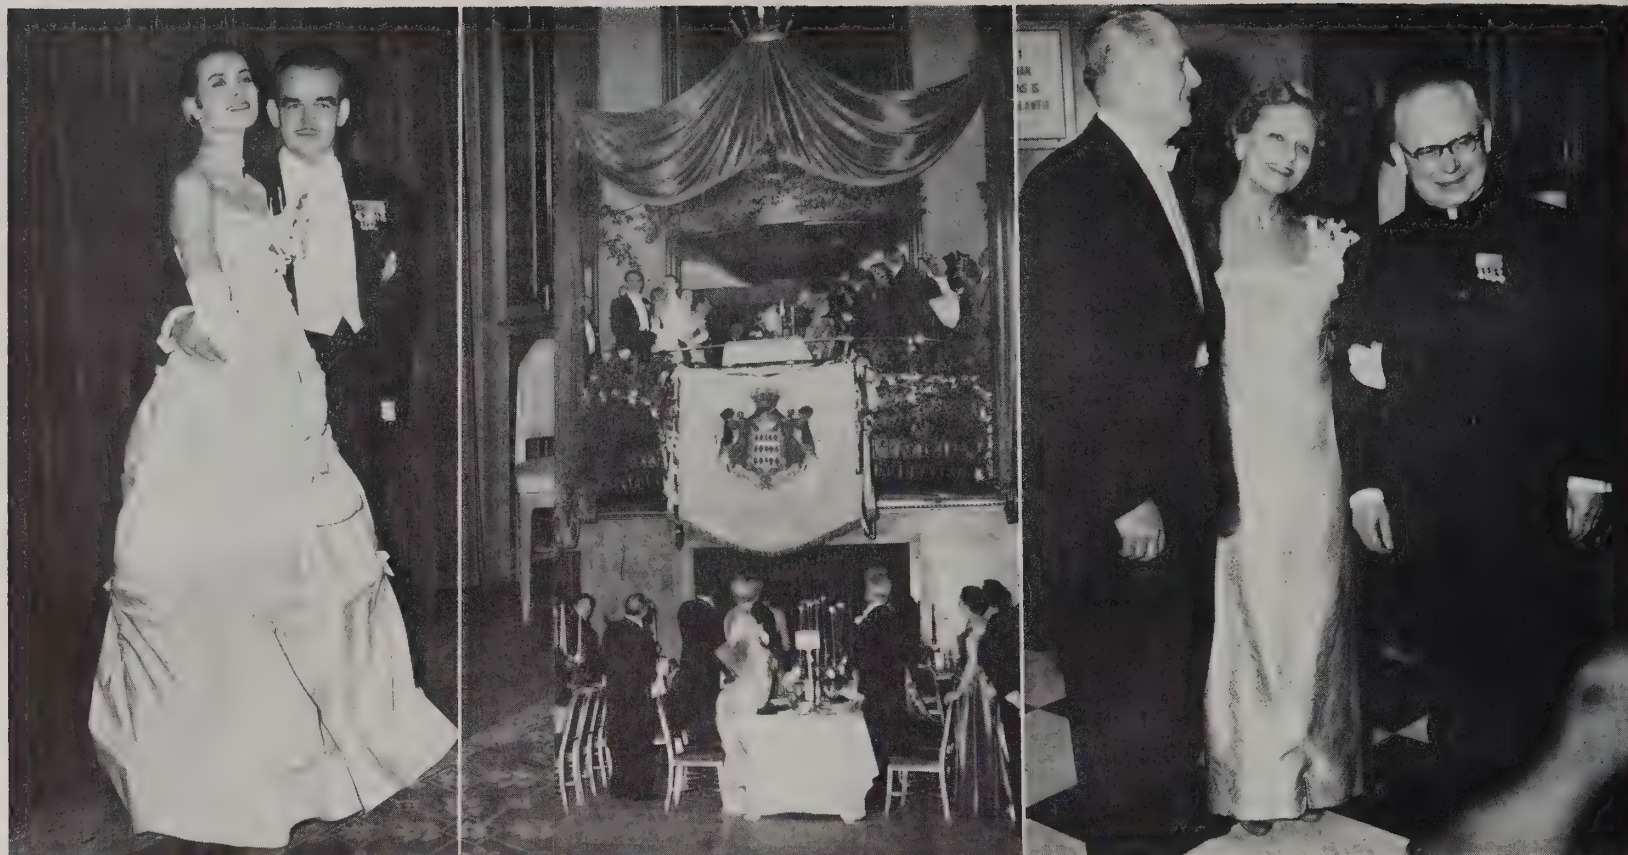

Mrs. Howard McNamara and her sister, Peg Adkins, were more dinner dance hosts at the Surf, with seated dinner in the patio and cocktails in the ocean front lounge.

First gala at the Surf was the Silver Anniversary Ball when all ladies either wore silver or dusted silver powder in their hair. Epitome of silver elegance was Mrs. Percy Randle Walters' new Empress chinchilla cape, worn over a white Parisian creation.

The Club was a vision of silver beauty as more than 800 dined and danced.

WITH HIS SERENE HIGHNESS, PRINCE RAINIER III OF MONACO, patron of the occasion, and his newly announced fiancée, Grace Kelly, of screen fame, the cynosure of all eyes, "The Imperial Ball—A Night in Monte Carlo" at the Waldorf Astoria, proved easily the most glamorous and exciting event of the social season to date. A benefit for the Hospitalized Veterans Service of the Musicians

Emergency Fund, it attracted a large and socially distinguished audience.

For the dinner and evening program Prince Rainier occupied the central first tier box in the Waldorf's Grand Ballroom, with his fiancée, her parents and other guests. The box was elaborately decorated in the colors of the Royal House, red and white, with a crown above, and the Prince's flag below. Two huge shields of red and white carnations were at either side of the ballroom and the chandelier was completely enveloped in carnations in the same colors, with trailing vines as further decoration. Red and white flowers and red and white candles on pink table cloths further emphasized the color scheme.

The glamorous Grace wore a white faille off-the-shoulder Dior gown, white mink cape and what has now become known as the Grace Kelly trade mark—long white gloves. Her hair was drawn back into a chignon and a simple strand of pearls and earrings enhanced her lovely neck and earlobes. Miss Kelly looked every inch the Princess she will soon be. The 32-year-old Prince, bedecked with medals and ribbons, never left her Grace's side. A real live fairy tale for all to see.

It was against this background that major events on the program—the Imperial Fashion Show, the ballet Don Quixote, and "La Bonne Chance"—took place.

The first event was the Imperial Fashion Show, featuring black and white costumes exclusively, all by famous designers, and Jane Froman opened her first singing engagement at the Empire Room of the Waldorf Astoria with a charity preview for the Mary MacArthur Memorial Fund of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

This engagement marked Miss Froman's first personal appearance at a New York night spot since the Spring of 1954, when she was the star attraction at the Copacabana.

A feature of Miss Froman's act was a fifteen-minute cavalcade of songs by Irving Berlin, arranged by Irvin Graham. Starting with such old-time favorites as "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Call Me Up Some Afternoon" of the pre-First World War era, the program included song hits of the past quarter of a century, "A Pretty Girl is Like a Melody," "Say It With Music," "Always," "White Christmas," and "There's No Business Like Show Business." Miss Froman wore specially designed gowns by Charles James, and hats by Mr. John depicting the fashions of by-gone days, in keeping with the periods of the songs on the program.

Mrs. Conrad Thibault was chairman of the event, and Mrs. Henry Colgate and Mrs. Donald Stralem were the co-chairmen.

Serving on the committee were Baroness Axel von Noelcken, Mrs. Arthur Macpherson, Mrs. George H. Shaw, Mrs. Norbert A. McKenna and Miss Ethel Smith.

Miss Froman again sang her way into our hearts.

One of the most picturesque events was the Third Annual Ball of Roses in the Grand Ballroom of the Plaza Hotel, proceeds of which went to support the hospitals' free care program. Many of the top names in the social and theatrical world attended. In a pale pink setting designed by Tom Lee we saw many of our friends: Mrs. Curt E. Forstmann, Mr. and Mrs. Julius G. Forstmann, Mrs. Anson Beard, Mr. and Mrs. George Emlen Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, Mr. and Mrs. John Ames Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Elliman, Mrs. Daniel Bacon, Frederick Satterfield, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Bedard, Miss Katharine Ordway, Mr. and Mrs. John K. Two benefit entertainments in the New York area creating quite a bit of comment will take place shortly at the Pierre. The first is the Animal Kingdom Ball for the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and the second, the following night, is the Blue Ridge Ball, forty-sixth annual entertainment given by New Yorkers of Southern birth or affiliation, for the benefit of the Blue Ridge School in Virginia.

Theme of the Animal Kingdom Ball this year is "Carnival of the Animals," inspired by Saint-Saen's music of that name. It will be carried out, decoratively, with an old-time carnival midway, a cafe-bar in a jungle setting, and stuffed or papier-mache animals all over the place. Bob Bouchers' orchestra will play for dancing.

Somewhat more sedate, but none the less lively, the Blue Ridge Ball offers an excellent dinner, and Lester Lanin's dance music. The proceeds will help the education of underprivileged children from remote mountain sections of the South.

● FEBRUARY 14. ST. VALENTINE'S DAY. BELLES AND BEAUX. Brings to mind The Greenbrier, honeymoon haven at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.

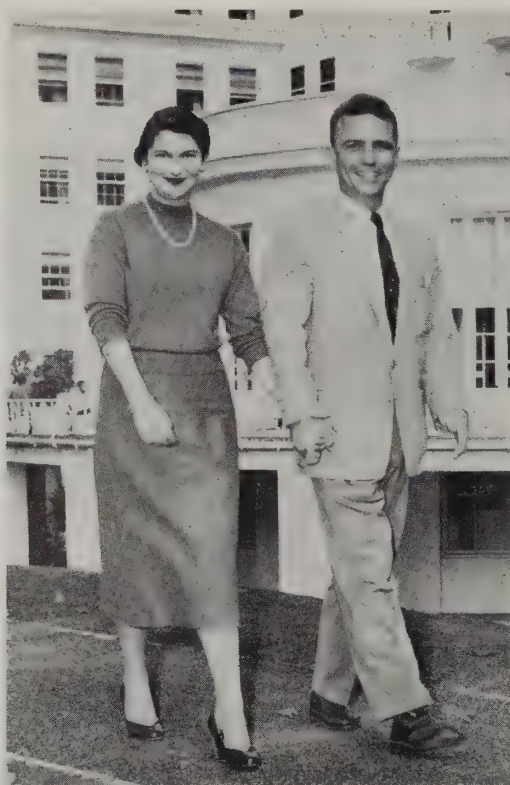

This historic mountain spa has been synonymous with romance for a good many generations. Its fame as a marriage market was such that even in the staid Victorian era a reporter sent a news letter to the Richmond Dispatch beginning, "White Sulphur is proverbial for the discovery of affinities between young people of different sexes . . ." And this was probably the understatement of the decade.

From the early 1800's on, model mothers brought marriageable daughters to the springs for the Summer social season mainly to snag a suitable husband. Match-makers did such a booming business that in 1832 Colonel Pope of Alabama launched the Billing, Wooing and Cooing Society.

The good Colonel had taken it upon himself to become master of ceremonies at the Springs. He organized the Cotillions and acted as a self-appointed go-between for the handsome beaux and belles. Parents and chaperones were indebted to him, for his plan of introduction was systemized to a T. He carefully screened the gentlemen before adding them to his list. This didn't present much of a problem, however, for Southerners were a hospitable bunch and those who weren't cousins knew the gentleman as kin of a friend.

Percival Reniers tells of this membership list in his book, SPRINGS OF VIRGINIA. The names of the 1700 members were written on a long roll of pink paper which hung on the wall of the ballroom for everyone to see. Along with the names was the constitution of the organization which "set down the rules that much govern a gentleman pursuing a lady."

With such able assistance, the beautiful belles of the White Sulphur Springs, the glamour debs of their day, made conquests right and left among the gallant beaux paying them court.

Even the walkways were planned for their

Honeymooners Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Prosser of Monteville, W. Va., in The Greenbrier's famed rendezvous, the Old White Club. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Hogan of Monteville and her husband is the son of Mrs. George Prosser of Tannersville, N. Y.

America's favorite sweethearts chose The Greenbrier for their honeymoon. Eddie Fisher and his bride, the petite Debbie Reynolds, off for a ride.

benefit. From the main trail, Lovers Walk, happy couples could wander down Lovers Rest, Courtship Maze, Acceptance, Rejection or Hesitancy, depending upon the progress of their courtship.

And for those whose belle chose Rejection path, there was Lover's Leap where it is said a young man, upon hearing his heart's desire say "no", looked over the precipice, but did not jump. He threw his hat and handkerchief over and immediately proceeded to get them again.

Tales are still told of the romances that blossomed here in days gone by. That of John H. B. Latrobe, a young lawyer from Baltimore who first came to the Springs in 1832, was typical. He was desolate. He had come to the Springs to recover from the grief of losing his beloved wife only a year before. At the White Sulphur he met an exceedingly attractive crowd, including the 17-year-old Miss Virginia Claiborne, daughter of an English lady named Hutchens and the late General Ferdinand Leigh Claiborne. Soon he was writing a friend back in Baltimore that he had met a "very pretty, very sensible and very unsophisticated" young lady, "the handsomest woman at the Springs and the most admired."

Two weeks later he pursued the Claibornes, who were returning home to Natchez, to Botetourt Springs, their first stop enroute. He popped the question and that Fall went down to Natchez, a 29-day trip from Baltimore, for the wedding.

Mr. Latrobe, whose father was a noted architect, left his mark at The Greenbrier of present times. He returned to the Springs with his bride and built a cottage. Soon a new row of little houses, patterned after his, were constructed. These were called Baltimore Row and they are still in use today. Baltimore G brought added fame to the Springs as the home of General Robert E. Lee in the Summers of 1867, '68 and '69.

According to Mr. Reniers, an authority on Springs history, "Any belle who returned from the Springs without at least one bona fide engagement per season was renegade to a great tradition and no credit to the family, to say nothing of her own feelings in the matter."

Another famed romance that kept the Springs agog in the Summer of 1837 was that of Angelica Singleton, daughter of Colonel Richard Singleton of THE Singletons of South Carolina and Abram Van Buren, son of the President.

One of the more renowned courtships that took place at the Old White in later days was that of William K. Vanderbilt and Miss Alva Smith, daughter of a proud old Southern family. It seems that even though she appeared at a ball "gowned in a cheap black tarleton adorned with scraps of goldenrod" she still captured the heart and hand of the multimillionaire and soon became the first Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Honeymooners, too, found the aura of romance surrounding the Springs quite irresistible. John Tyler, elected Vice President of the United States and succeeding to the Presidency on the death of Harrison, is said to have carried his bride over the threshold of the President's Cottage. His wife, Julia Gardener, was a great beauty of Virginia and one of the Old White belles.

Tomorrow's reminiscers will tell how America's favorite sweethearts, petite Debbie Reynolds and her handsome bridegroom, Eddie Fisher, came to The Greenbrier in 1955 for their honeymoon, for today's newlyweds are of the same sentiment as they flock to White Sulphur for their wedding trip. They still enjoy the legend of the Old White, forerunner of today's Greenbrier, that "the fire flies that brighten the nights are all the love words that have been breathed by generations of happy lovers."

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McIntyre of Windsor, Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. George R. Welch of Indianapolis; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hannon Jr., of Pittsburgh and Mr. and Mrs. John Hanighen III of Omaha, Nebraska, are among the newlyweds who recently visited the resort.

From Ohio to White Sulphur for a wedding trip came Mr. and Mrs. Russell B. Geiger Jr., of Rocky River; Mr. and Mrs. Dean W. Palmer of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. McNulty of Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. George P. Schumaker of Lakewood; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Knight, also of Columbus; and Mr. and Mrs. Alex James McCrea III of Lakewood.

For those who've never seen an English county fair — or those who have, and enjoyed it — there will be a Bahamian counterpart on March 1 with the Bahamas Red Cross Fair. Nassauvians and the Winter set put aside their regular activities for weeks ahead preparing for the charity gigantic. A produce market, cooked foods booths, games, refreshment stands, entertainment for the children, and even a champagne dinner under the stars are traditional highlights of the annual event, in the gardens of Government House. Adding to the festive spirit is the smart social set-turned-vendors, urging patrons to "step right up to the counter."

The hotels are having a particularly busy season this year, with more and more guests from the Midwest and Far West discovering the charm of the islands which for so long has attracted those from the East.

Favorite spot for dinner-dancing is the British Colonial Hotel. Always with good entertainment and festive atmosphere the "BeeCee" is almost a Saturday night must, as is the ever-popular Drake Hotel. Of course, a trip over-the-hill to the native night spots is a natural ending for any evening.

The Royal Victoria Hotel has just opened a new section of rooms in the gardens, offering the ultimate in luxury accommodations just a few steps from the swimming pool. Blind Blake and his trio are still playing calypso favorites here for the cocktail hour.

The Emerald Beach Hotel, which opened last Winter, is continuing to expand its facilities, adding recently a putting green. During the Summer, tennis courts were added — making it one of the island's most versatile hostelrys.

Under new management, the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel is stepping up its pace in the Jungle Club, with a star-studded array of entertainers, both local and imported. John Cota has recently taken the helm as general manager of the hotel.

The Prince George Hotel, the harbor-edge spot on Bay Street, has attracted a large number of vacationing entertainers in recent weeks — Peter Donald, emcee of ABC's "Masquerade Party"; Garry Moore of "I've Got a Secret"; Henry Morgan, the inimitable sponsor-panner, and Eydie Gorme and Steve Lawrence, vocalists with Steve Allen's show.

The Nassau Racquet Club has added a children's play area and a recreation room during remodeling program designed to accommodate more guests. This club almost always has guest representation from every section of the States — and Canada.

Remodeling on a large scale has changed the Pilot House Club, too — with added rooms, modernized lobby, dining room and bar and drive-in entrance. This is a popular rendezvous for yachtsmen from the Nassau Yacht Haven, just across the street.

Enjoying a very busy season is the Balmoral Club, where one of the most pleasant regular events is the weekly barbecue lunch at the club's island beach just off the shoreline. The club takes its guests to the island by boat for sunning and bathing each day — a change of scenery from the Balmoral beach just beside the hotel.

The Bahamas Country Club, always a favorite for golfers and non-golfers alike, has remodeled extensively this year, providing additional facilities and a modernized dining room. Members are making plans for the traditionally gala Bahamas Country Club Golf Tournament in late March, when golfers from the States compete with Nassauvians and Winter residents.

The visitor to the Bahamas can take his cue in entertainment from the Winter residents — who are increasing in numbers every year, as new homes are built.

By day it's the beach, the horse races (Tuesdays and Fridays), fishing or just lazy boating, or a lingering lunch in town — possibly a typically Bahamian fare of fish with peas and rice at the Carlton House.

By night, dinner at one of the hotels (Cumberland House and the Buena Vista are favorites), preceded by cocktails, possibly at Cap'n Joe's Locker at the Buena Vista. Then, dancing or hearing George Symonette's famous calypso song interpretations at the Imperial or club-hopping from the hotels to the native spots, until the wee hours.

Close on the dancing heels of this first formal festive occasion held by the Gulf Stream Hospital group will come another spectacular "first" in Boca Raton Club "Grand Ball" history, the first Boca Raton Art Guild Ball.

The renowned couple will make their only Florida appearances in February at the Boca Raton Club on the 18th, 25th and 28th, dancing to the music of RCA Victor recording star Freddy Martin and his famous Orchestra.

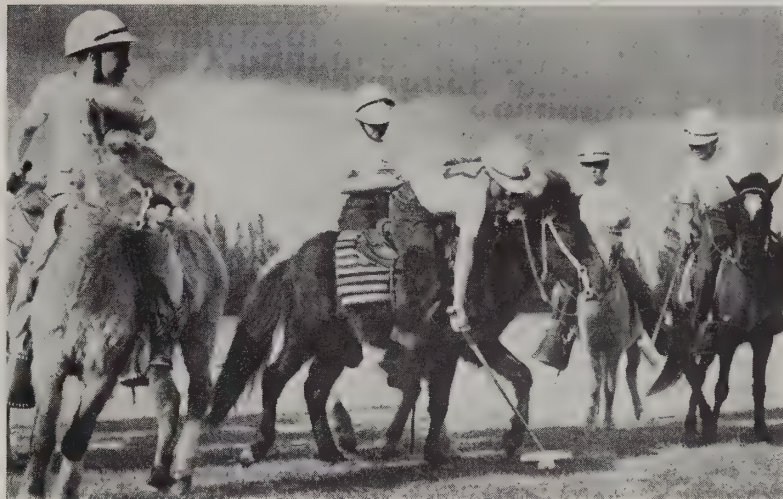

Lunching, dining, dancing, meeting and greeting friends at the Club within a 24-hour period recently were such Club members and guests as Mr. and Mrs. Irving Berlin, Gulf Stream Hospital Association officers and commissioners Mrs. Charles Spalsbury and Mrs. Catherine Strong, the Prince and Princess Martin Lubomirski and their charming youngsters, Isabel and Ladislau, Boca Raton Art Guild officers, including President Mrs. Arnold McSpadden and Mrs. F. The "sprout" poloists are taking part in a six-game season schedule — in addition to playing exhibition games at nearby clubs.

Every day — and evening — at Boca Raton brings new and exciting activities for members and guests to enjoy. Such events as the annual American Bicycle Queen contest, held at the Boca Raton Cabana Club, drew large crowds of spectators to witness a parade of Gay Nineties swimsuits worn by attractive young ladies wheeling old-fashioned bikes from the James Melton Autorama collection.

Sports activities continue to take the limelight at Boca, with veteran golf pro Tommy Armour conducting tournaments for members and guests and teaching tyros the tricks of championship play which have made Tommy top international golf instructor.

On the tennis courts, located adjacent to the Boca Raton Club's famous Garden Pool, tennis "great" Fred Perry holds forth, with exhibition games drawing tennis fans from all over Florida throughout the season.

Contemporary American Painting

EXHIBITED AT Lowe Gallery

By BETSY BUFFINGTON

OVER 300 SOUTH FLORIDIANS attended a special preview of a contemporary American painting exhibition at the University of Miami's Lowe Gallery. Interim director Robert Tyler Davis and Mrs. Davis greeted members and their guests at the preview of Lowe Gallery's first major exhibition for 1956. Interest was particularly high because 14 Miami artists had paintings accepted in the competition.

Originating at the Society of the Four Arts, Palm Beach, the exhibition was open to all American artists. James Johnson Sweeney, director of New York's Guggenheim Museum, selected the paintings to be exhibited. Mr. Sweeney also distributed some $1250 in prize money.

Hostesses for the preview were Beaux Arts members Mrs. Thomas Patterson Wenzel Jr.,

Dr. and Mrs. Julian Corrington (he is chairman of UM's Zoology Department) were on hand for the preview. Mrs. Corrington, a noted watercolorist, is currently helping to found a watercolor society in the Miami area. "Other cities have them, why not Miami?" said the charming Mrs. Corrington. "We'll be working to further the cause of watercolors and hope we'll be able to arrange frequent exhibitions of work in this medium exclusively." Lowe Gallery has been mentioned as a possible exhibition spot.

The head of the University of Miami's Motion and Time Study Laboratory, Dr. Jean Paul Lesperance and Mrs. Lesperance were saying hellos to fellow UMers John Klinkenberg and Richard Merrick.

Marcia Pawley and Jean Herendeen were enthusiastic about the predominantly abstract exhibition. However, their enthusiasm didn't extend to the Miami coldsnap. "It's ridiculous," Marcia Pawley said, "we might as well be up North!"

Currently on view at Lowe Gallery is an exhibition of contemporary British painting. The American painting exhibition closed January 22 and went on to Havana for exhibition in the National Museum. "Living Today — The Miami Way," an exhibition featuring room set-ups, and sponsored jointly by the Florida chapter of the American Institute of Decorators and the Miami Herald, followed.

WALTER MURCH

*... Painter
of the Impossible*

"OBJECTS"

PHOTOGRAPHIC REPRODUCTIONS BY OLIVER BAKER, NEW YORK

*H*ERALDED both as the painter of the impossible and of the commonplace, Walter Murch has just finished his first Southern exhibition at the Worth Avenue Gallery.

Though he exhibited at several galleries following his first one-man show in 1941 at Wakefield Gallery, his real climb to fame among contemporary American painters really began with his discovery by Debora Calkins, assistant art editor of Fortune Magazine, when he showed at the Betty Parsons Gallery in New York.

Betty Parsons, sister of Mrs. Archibald C. Rayner, who is co-director with Mrs. Duggett Benson of the Worth Avenue Gallery, has presented four one-man shows of Murch's work, in 1947, 1949, 1951 and 1954. He also has exhibited at the Addison Gallery in Andover, the Pennsylvania Academy, the Corcoran, George Washington University, Worcester Museum, Chicago Art Institute, at the Carnegie show and at the Whitney Annual.

Though a number of patrons of the Worth Avenue Gallery have become acquainted with his work through the years he has exhibited, many viewed his paintings for the first time and learned at first hand his magic in making commonplace everyday objects sparkle with life and vitality.

They had the opportunity of learning why Murch has been termed "painter of the impossible," because of his ability to turn the most commonplace objects into poetically lovely works of art.

Murch has been quoted as saying: "I think a painter paints best what he thinks about most. For me this is about objects, objects from my childhood, present surroundings, or a chance object that stimulates my interest, around which accumulate these thoughts . . .

Once I have selected an object to paint and have worked out the background and technique of transferring the object to canvas, I forget about the object and try to paint the best painting I can . . ."

That he has painted the best painting he can in each case was amply pointed up in the Worth Avenue show.

To a realism that (Continued on Page 79)

(Continued from Page 77) has been compared to that of the Old Masters, especially in early Dutch and Italian works, he has added his own special skill in making inanimate objects come alive and re-create an image for the sensitive beholder.

Mechanical gadgets are invested with a magic realism that makes them more than just objects; pieces of fruit, several eggs, a bit of pottery become architectural designs or color harmonies. There is vast tactile appeal, especially in his skill with textures. Generally subdued, his colors have warm life and richness.

The popularity of his works is attested by the fact that they have found their way into the collections of many museums, including the Metropolitan, the Modern and the Whitney in New York; the Brooklyn Museum of Art; the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts; the University of Illinois; the Toledo Museum of Art; the Joslyn Museum in Omaha; the Wadsworth Athenium in Hartford.

The artist is also represented in the collections of such connoisseurs as Henry Schnakenberg, Edward Root, Julien Levy, George Wells, James Caffrey, Priscilla Peck, Mrs. Lynne Thompson, John Marsman, Hugh Chisholm, Francis Brennan, Marion B. Carstairs, Louise Crane, Oliver Jennings, C. Sterling Bunnell, Gerald Piel, Mrs. Whitney Choat.

It was inevitable that his special talent with scientific gadgets should be applied also to the world of business.

He has done paintings for the National City Bank, which won the 1953 Gold Medal in the New York Art Directors Club exhibition. His cover for Fortune was honored by the Art Directors Club of Philadelphia. Murch then did a series of covers for Scientific American Magazine.

A native of Canada, he came to New York at the age of 23 in 1930 and worked on stained glass and sculpture for two years. He studied at Art Students League under H. K. Miller and at the Grand Central Art School under Arshile Gorky.

In 1933 he worked in Mexico and since then has worked with architects in New York, both at industrial design and on murals.

Married to Katherine L. Scott, he has one son, Walter Scott Murch, and a daughter, Louise. The family lives in New York.

The Murch exhibition, which ran from January 31 to February 11, was the fourth of the season at the Worth Avenue Gallery. In keeping with its policy of presenting contemporary American and continental artists, always including some from the Palm Beach art world, the gallery opened in mid-December with a group show.

Introduced at this show were Rosario Murabito, Roger Baker, Aline Porter, Denys

Fitz-Patrick. Local artists included Riccardo Magni, Theda (Mrs. George H.) Tilton, Emilie (Mrs. Oscar W.) Johnson, Ann (Mrs. Ralph) Norton, and Jack Hawkins.

Next followed a week's showing of new child portraits by Zoe Shippen, featuring recent pastels of a number of children from the Winter colony. These included Dmitri Ilyinsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Ilyinsky; John Francis Dodge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Dodge 2d; Jamie and Russell Kelley 3d, children of Mr. and Mrs. Russell P. Kelley Jr.; Robin Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard O. Russell; Sharon and Brenda Sweeny, daughters of Robert Sweeny; Brenda Lee, daughter of Mrs. Joyce Dunbaugh Lee; Libby Quackenbush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen S. V. Quackenbush Jr.; Donner Hanson, son of Mrs. E. Donner Hanson; Bonita Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Parker Bryant.

Among the older subjects were Mary Beth Turner, daughter of Mrs. James Allen Turner; Carolyn Rittenour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin B. Rittenour; Shelby dePeyster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. dePeyster; Stephen Cutter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cutter; Michael Burke, son of Mrs. John W. Salisbury.

Lent for the show were two oil portraits of Stephen Laiser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Laiser and Peter Allatt, Mrs. Laiser's son.

Following the Shippen show, "Recent Paintings by Ouida," 35 brilliantly colorful new works in the post-Impressionist manner, had a two weeks' exhibition. The artist is the former Ouida Romanoff, in private life Mrs. Harold George, who has exhibited widely in exhibitions here.

Hopkins Hensel of Palm Beach and Ogonquit is to have a show next month.

Brazilian Court Hotel... "Palm Beach at its Loveliest"

Captivating setting at Brazilian Court Hotel showing the Dining Patio where Mayfair magazine of Toronto staged a Preview of Canada's Fur Fashions

By MAJOR H. GRADY CASTILLOW, U.S.A.F.R.

THE UNFAMILIAR HISTORY of lovely Brazilian Court Hotel to most of us Palm Beach winterers is not well known because of our apathetic acceptance of its present, picturesque, architectural plans as having always been here, born as a child endowed with handsome parents of impeccable heritage.

Yet the hotel is actually of an incredible meager origin. Only Palm Beachers of twenty-five years ago can inform us of the very simple apartment edifice on the corner of Brazilian and Hibiscus Avenues. Of sound structure, excellent location, the building occupied a degree of prominence but with absolutely no degree of repute.

Elliott F. Bishop, of Southampton fame, was drafted by the property owner for his expert advice and opinion of its possibilities. And evolving from a remarkable series of events, the Bishop, personal management celebrates its twenty-fifth year — or Silver Anniversary — during the current season.

Without delay, the building was converted from an apartment to a hotel, primarily, by dismantling the efficiency kitchens — hence the large, walk-in-closet conveniences of present-day accommodations.

Combined with Elliott F. Bishop's loyal Southampton following, his managerial know-how, Brazilian Court Hotel was visibly, both hotel-wise and guests-wise, a success.

Activities incident to this success, perforce, prompted an expansion program which, when completed in 1936, doubled the area of the original apartment building. These subsequent remodelings and alterations included an entirely new section of rooms, penthouse and suite accommodations, cocktail lounges, loggia, indoor dining rooms, dining patios and ultra-modern, central kitchen facilities — all of which extended the property boundaries South and through the entire block from Brazilian to Australian Avenues.

Mellowed by the tides of time, Brazilian Court Hotel is likened only to a matured, flowering magnolia tree. Possessing a permeating air of exclusiveness and sophistication, its impressive roster of guests rings a peculiarly indescribable note of quality.

Through the dignified portals of Brazilian Court Hotel have, without question, entered the nation's most prominent families — a listing of which would be a carbon copy of a Who's Who of America or the Social Directory. Or both!

Illuminating names of Chicago meat packing families include Mr. and Mrs. Philip D.

"Brazilian Court Hotel is likened only to a matured, flowering Magnolia tree"

Armour, the late Laurence Armour and his family of Lake Forest, Lester Armour Jr. of Chicago and Tucson, Arizona — all figuring in the prominent registry within the last decade; and Harold S. Swift and his niece, Mrs. Ruth Dunbar Sherwood, are among frequent and current guests of Brazilian Court Hotel.

Howard Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Cooper and Jeanette McDonald are included among California's notable celebrity listing.

The late, youthful business genius, Aircraft Parts Corporation's tycoon, Harvey H. Dwight, the late Philip W. Lennen, chairman of the board of one of the advertising field's recognized firms, Lennen and Newell, Inc.,

have, with their families, Wintered at Brazilian Court Hotel.

Recently as last year's registrations, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hogan, Mrs. Jean Mauze, granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, with Mr. Mauze were seasonal Brazilian Court Hotel guests as was Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, mother of Mrs. John Kennedy, a visitor with Mr. Auchincloss. Thomas J. Watson, chairman of the board, International Business Machines Corp., sojourned with Mrs. Watson.

A continuing list of prominent names and current, seasonal guests includes Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Strong Mulford of Montclair, the Uz McMurtrees, Mrs. Thomas C. Werbe of Indianapolis; from Chicago — the Weymouth Kirklands, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cowles, and from suburban Lake Forest, the John Adams Chapmans and their daughter, Mrs. Eugene duPont III of Greenville, Del.

The Horace B. Hollands, their daughter of legitimate stage fame, Betty Lou Holland, the New York City attorney and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Leo T. Kissam, Mrs. Denison D. Dana, the Arthur A. Johnsons, George Pattullo, Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Leary, the Arthur Hetheringtons, Mrs. Russell McCandless, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Hillman — all with New York City addresses and staying at Brazilian Court Hotel.

The Palm Beach Biltmore

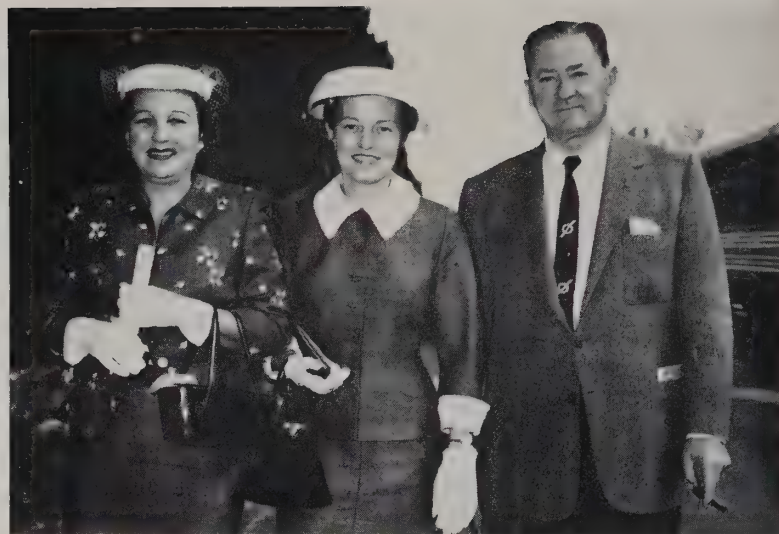

By SALLY SLOANE

AS THE PALM BEACH SEASON rolls on and the opening of Hialeah is announced, there is always a tense air of excitement and anticipation prevailing among members of the racing fraternity — for it also signals the inaugural date for the run of the Palm Beach Biltmore race special, affectionately known as the "pony express," which steams down to Hialeah daily during the 40-day meet.

As the race-goers converge on the Florida East Coast Railway platform prior to departure of the train, hundreds of spectators are on hand to obtain an advance preview of what the well dressed race-goer is wearing and what members of royalty are on hand —

They were not disappointed for it wasn't long before Lord Carnarvon of London and his beautiful daughter, Lady Penelope Van der Woude, appeared on the scene to join the party of the Paulding Fosdicks, Mrs. Audrey Emery and Philip Livermore. The royal Lady was outstanding in her smart simplicity, having chosen a tailored blue and white silk print with matching sweater —

However, it was the Kennedys — former Ambassador and Mrs.

theme in a wide brimmed picture hat which topped a muted blue and green ensemble —

Whether it was the somewhat overcast skies or an inkling of what Spring portends in the way of fashion for milady that brought out a number of stunning gray ensembles, one wouldn't know — at any rate there were many ahs and ohs as the two attractive Taylor wives — Mrs. Daniel E. Taylor and Mrs. Leslie Taylor — arrived. Mrs. Dan Taylor was wearing a trim two-piece light charcoal gray suit with snow white embroidered collar and cuffs and a white very Parisienne looking rolled over brim straw hat with Spring's new look; Mrs. Leslie Taylor also in a charcoal gray suit had selected yellow accessories to match the hand embroidered yellow daisies on her jacket. Even Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, who usually chose something to match the blue of her racing colors, wore a printed silk gray with matching navy togue and shoes—Mrs. Sloane as usual occupied her favorite club car corner—this year in the Hobe Sound instead of the Royal Palm, which was switched up front for Delray Beach race-goers. In the Sloane party, which had a card game en route all the way down, were her sister, Mrs. Wesson Seyburn, Mrs. Harold Hoffman, William Lavine and her houseguest, Daniel Simonds.

In the Taylor party relaxing in one of the lounge cars were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Taylor, the brothers Alfred and William Taylor from Virginia Beach and Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. D. J. McAuliffe of New Orleans.

In a foursome were Commander and Mrs. John M. Rutherford and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Prosser, and also Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Savage and Mr. and Mrs. James L. Flanagan.

Prominent racing stable owners who got on board at Delray Beach were Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Hancock of Paris, Ky., whose guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Lyons Browns of Louisville. Mr. Hancock owns the Clairborne Farms and many of his horses run at Hialeah during the racing season.

The Biltmore "race special" has been a part of the racing scene since 1951, when Biltmore owner Daniel E. Taylor conceived the idea for special race track train service to Hialeah for residents of the Palm Beaches. Each year the patrons grow in number and the race special which departs from the FEC station at 11:20, Delray Beach at 11:35 and Fort Lauderdale at 12:10, has become a definite part of the resort picture of the Gold Coast.

Lady Penelope Van der Woude shows her racing selections for Hialeah to Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick, veteran riders of the "Pony Special."

In the Clubhouse at the Kennel Club are Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Latimer of Palm Beach.

Among the many resort residents who watched the greyhounds run recently at the Palm Beach Kennel Club from Clubhouse tables overlooking the racing strip were Mrs. Charles G. Terry, Mr. Terry and Mrs. Robert W. Terry.

Enjoying an evening of greyhound racing from the beautiful, glass-enclosed Clubhouse were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Smith of New York, Mrs. Joseph A. Schutz of Delray Beach, Thomas Zappo of Trenton, N. J., and Arthur N. Pierson Jr., of Palm Beach.

That man may settle your estate!

Yes — even though he's a complete stranger to you.

It depends, you see, on whether you've made a Will and named an executor.

If you haven't, the court will appoint an administrator to settle your estate. And it may be a stranger — that man or another — who knows nothing of you and your wishes, your family and their individual needs, problems, hopes...

If you haven't — let us talk to you and your lawyer. We'll be glad to help plan the financial aspects of your Will — and we make a business, of course, of executorship.

No obligation in discussing these important matters with our senior trust officers.

The Breakers

By Amy Lyman Phillips

FEBRUARY WAS AN ACTIVE MONTH, both in social events and sports, highlighted by the annual Women's Amateur Golf Championship at the Palm Beach Golf Club, which started on Tuesday, February 7, with an entry list of amateurs coming from the Pacific Coast, with a Washington State team of Ruth Jessen and Ann Quast, to the Atlantic Coast contender, 18-year-old Joanne Goodwin of Plymouth, Mass., who had just topped the field at the Doherty Championship at Ft. Lauderdale, and was runner-up here in 1955.

The annual men's Championship to be held in March brings the final golf event for the season here, with the largest entry list.

Ray McCarthy was on hand to direct all the golf events here this season, as well as at St. Augustine.

The Breakers has been tops for entertaining this season, with the Wednesday Dinners DeLuxe to precede the weekly Wednesday Gala in the Terrace Garden.

Several guests have participated in the Gala programs, together with singers. Suzanne Nicole, soprano, and Joseph Wessel, tenor, also are heard at the cocktail hour two or three times weekly and alternating at the Sunday evening concerts.

The first Sunday in February brought a wonderful program, selected entirely from Victor Herbert's operettas, bringing a capacity audience to the Ballroom. Game nights on Mondays at The Breakers Ballroom, and dance games directed on Friday evenings, following motion pictures, by Betty and George Montgomery, with their assistants, Frank Greeley and Ted Thomas, who insure plenty of dancing partners for the ladies.

There was much entertaining on St. Valentine's Day, and some notable cocktail parties given in the Blue Room by guests. The Magnolia Room, thus known for parties, or doubling as the Television Room at other times, is used for large private parties and dinners. But the Washington's Birthday Ball climaxes all other attractions of our shortest month.

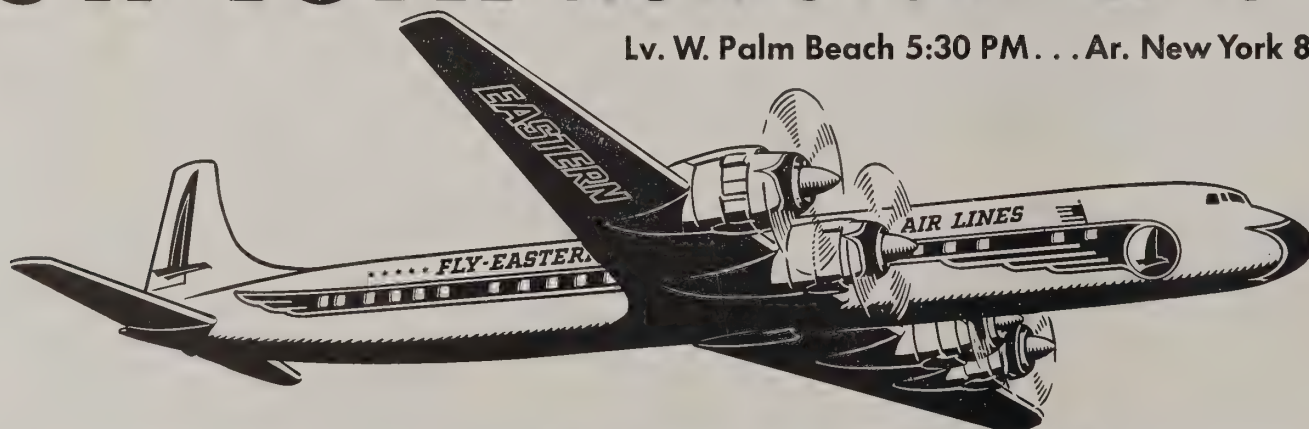

The large Canadian colony here is a tribute to The Breakers, including as it does, two veteran Senators, Senator Donat Raymond of Montreal, an annual visitor for more than a quarter century, and Senator N. M. Patterson of Ottawa, Ont., and many others from the Queen's Dominion, including a noted golfer, Miss Janet Carruthers of Winnipeg, Man., who is here all season.

This is an ideal spot in which tired business men may relax and recuperate, and with sports and bathing, their days are well filled, not forgetting the daily sun baths at Ellison's Casino baths.

Among them are Elmer K. Bolton of the DuPont Company, from Wilmington, Del.; retired banker John E. Judson of So. Orange, N. J.; Allan Jackson of Chicago, of the Indiana division of Standard Oil; Thomas A. Bradley of New York and Howard Willetts of Chicago, owners of the two largest truck companies in the nation; Edmund Hallett Taylor, former president of the Worcester Street Railway Co., and of several Bay State bus lines; Eugene K. Denton, owner of "Tailored Woman," New York; J. Gilmore Fletcher, New York lawyer; Walter J. Cummings, Chicago banker; Ray A. Huber of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, New York; Bernard H. Ridder, president of the St. Paul Dispatch and other papers; Louis Marron, who has fabulous oil holdings, from Newark, N. J.; Albert W. Rockwood, Boston lawyer; M. L. Madden of Boston and Newton, Mass., head of great paper industries — and many, many others — all of whom speak in glowing terms of the facilities here for relaxation and recreation, building up new energy for carrying on. It is significant that most of these men do not wish to retire, for the many fascinations of big business are too great to relinquish.

Physicians also require this change, among those here being Dr. Malcolm Z. Gearhart of Reading, Pa., celebrating his 50th year of medical service; Dr. C. E. Van Gaasbeek of Kingston, N. Y.; Dr. C. Scott Althouse of Reading; Dr. John Jay Ireland of Chicago, Ill.; Dr. C. W. Hebard of New Canaan, Conn.; Dr. Charles W. Barkhorn of Newark, N. J.; Dr. Robert Sterling McGrath of Washington, D. C.; and, later on, several other physicians.

February's improved weather resulted in many changes here. The Ocean Terrace promenade, the Cocoanut Grove, where so many rest and read, the Breakers Beach, where many contented folk lounge beneath the great umbrellas when not dipping into the surf, the broad West Patio for sun-bathing and the West Terrace, where one congregates to watch bowling on the green, or the long line of spectator seats facing the putting green, where large galleries watch the weekly contest or daily practice; all are favored by Breakers guests, so many of whom scarcely ever leave the grounds, so many contributions to their comfort and entertainment are available.

But more popular than any other feature of Breakers life are the Terrace Garden, the Blue Room, where so many private parties are held, the beautiful Bar Room, with its ample seating capacity, preferred for small parties, and the great Starlight Room, where nightly, save on Sunday, so many hospitalities are extended by guests and members of the Villa colony. Sunday afternoon's cocktail hour is one of the most important of the week, bringing capacity attendance.

The Breakers guests also avail themselves of the many places available and many take the daily Biltmore race train to Hialeah. The new Fronton for the exciting jai-alai also has attracted large numbers, and facilities at the new Palm Beach and Gulf Stream Polo Clubs also take many from the hotel to watch the exciting games, or see the fashion shows held weekly, the parade of foreign sports cars, the groups of celebrities from Palm Beach Playhouse — and first of all, the Playhouse itself, which affords so much pleasure to all.

Most theatre lovers here take season tickets for the plays, and also attend many plays at the Norton Galleries as well as movies at the Society of the Four Arts. The several art exhibitions this month also have attracted many and the Palm Beach Round Table and the several attractions at the Four Arts have resulted in many season tickets being sold here.

Remember the old Peacock Alley at the former Waldorf Astoria in New York, where fashion writers and dress manufacturers and milliners were sent to congregate to see the styles? The Breakers affords wonderful opportunity to observe style trends and many gather here to dine and watch the procession from the dining room promenade through the main foyer, or assemble for first night at the Playhouse or perhaps to attend the Tombola or Tuesday night buffet at the Everglades Club, or some of the many other glamorous events frequented by Breakers society.

The rank and file of Breakers guests attend the Palm Beach churches on Sundays and must derive a good bit of spiritual satisfaction from them all.

In short, as one man expressed it — one who has spent many seasons here and returns annually: "The Breakers has everything. Enough said." And as many remark, this, its 60th season, brings more and more satisfaction to those who term their arrivals here, "Coming Home."

Art of the Orient

Delicate Yet Vital Is Chen Chi's Work

Chen Chi, one of America's and China's most distinguished artists, who has a one-man exhibition at the Kaastra Gallery, is shown posed beside one of the murals of delicate Oriental technique for which he has achieved much fame.

AN EXHIBITION of unusual distinction, combining the delicacy of the Orient with the vitality of the Western world is now on display at the Kaastra Gallery, 408 Hibiscus Avenue in Palm Beach. That of Chen Chi, one of America's and China's most distinguished artists are on display there.

Born in Wusih, Kiangsu, China, he was formerly professor of art in St. John's University in Shanghai, where from 1940 to 1946 he held one-man exhibitions.

Coming to America in 1947, Chen Chi has since rocketed to an unusual position of distinction for his unique watercolor technique. This technique is reflected in the paintings that make up this show. Palm Beach art lovers had a preview of his style at the earlier showing at the Norton Gallery of the American Watercolor Society traveling exhibition. For the outstanding picture in this show was the Chen Chi $1,000 award winner, termed "watercolor of the year."

The artist is an associate member of the National Academy of Design and has taken a leading role in various art activities. In 1954 he won three gold medals and one bronze, as well as cash prizes, including the Philadelphia watercolor award.

This past year his honors have been many, including the first watercolor prize of the 20th Annual Midyear Show of the Butler Institute of American Art; the first watercolor prize of the First Tri-State Jury Show of the Chautauqua Art Association; the gold medal for watercolor, 14th Annual Audubon Artists; the Adolph and Clara Obrig Prize at the 130th Annual Exhibition of the National Academy of Design, of which he is a member.

The artist is now an American citizen.

Royal Palms Inn

PHOENIX, ARIZONA

By Fontayne Semaine

HAVE YOU EVER EXPERIENCED Spring on the Desert? We have a tower here at the Royal Palms Inn that looms skyward in stately fashion, and gives one the feeling of being on top of the world. From here you see, breathe, and feel the beauty that surrounds you. Look out over our acres of citrus and smell millions of orange and grapefruit blossoms. Every cactus is growing it's Easter bonnet and the birds join in a chorus of music blending into an Arizona Symphony at twilight.

We Arizonians are shy about bragging on our sunshine, but Arizona sunshine has a fluorescent quality found no where else in America. It shines on an ordinary old dingy mountain and turns it into shimmering crimson and gold. Camelback Mountain, which serves as a backdrop to our Inn, is like a changing chameleon as the sun begins to set. Here truly is the glorious golden West.

Canadians who have deserted the chillier climates this Winter to share our paradise with us include the G. Dudley Thomas family, Mrs. F. C. Brunke, and Miss Betty Brunke, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Stapells, all from Toronto; the Harland Long family from Hamilton; and Mr. and Mrs. Earson Gibson from Vancouver.

Brigadier General and Mrs. John McQueen and Miss Zasu Pitts are shown in the diningroom of the Royal Palms Inn, Phoenix, Ariz., admiring the Marine Corps Emblem, carved in ice.

Each Sunday evening our Inn guests as well as many of our Phoenician friends gather to partake of the grandest feast of all — our buffet suppers. Declaring them to be a gourmet's delight is putting it terribly mildly for they are also magnificent works of art.

A few weeks ago guests of honor at a party given by Judge and Mrs. Dewitt Merriam were Brigadier General and Mrs. John McQueen. General McQueen is commandant of the Marine Corps Training Station at San Diego. The buffet centerpiece was the Marine Corps emblem carved in ice and in front of it reproduced in golden tallow was Iwo Jima's "Planting the flag on Mount Suribachi." Another week the motif was golf in honor of the golf greats registered for the Phoenix Open Golf Tourney.

The Inn this Winter has become a favorite spot for art exhibitions. Our tropical patio arcade provides a superlative setting and the works displayed certainly have measured up to their environment. We have had new works to admire each month with the Arizona Artist's League and the Mesa Art League sharing the honors.

New England has been generous this Winter and afforded us the opportunity of entertaining many of her leading citizens. Among them are Messrs. and Mmes. Converse M. Converse of Ridgefield, Conn.; Robert Mattox of Millis, Mass.; Allyn Wadhams of Hartford, Conn.; the Henry Vance family of Manchester, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. John Dean of Hingham, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Edwards of Bridgeport, Conn.; D. T. Farrington and his daughter, Eleanor, of Waterbury, Conn.; and Mrs. Charles Morrow of Meredith, N.H.

Square dancing, popular all over the country, has taken on new importance here at the Inn and we have been "Teton Mountain Stomping" and "Putting in our Little Feet" each week in the Cantina. Cowboys and their guests add a real Western flavor to the evenings. Among those who no longer hesitate to make a figure eight are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Black Jr., of Washington, D.C.; Dr. and Mrs. Russell Ephland of Park Ridge, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Heaver of Beverly Hills, Calif.; and the F. M. Roesing family of Chicago, Ill.

DEANE'S STUDIO

The view of the famous ninth island green from the sundeck of Golf Cottage.

EVEN THOUGH handsome sports apparel is the usual daytime attire worn at The Inn, there's another type of clothing being seen quite extensively these days. Along with those bewitching straw beach hats, one gets a glimpse of a painter's white cap. Bermuda shorts and gay argyle knee-length sox are very much in style but so are the coveralls worn by carpenters. And a golf club or tennis racquet may be familiar objects to the carefree vacationer, but the skilled workman finds the trowel fits his hand to perfection.

The improvements (and numerous they are) noted about Ponte Vedra in the past few weeks are certainly worthy of mention. The main dining room, delightful in the past, is charming now. A new acoustical tile ceiling has been installed, adorned by the latest in lighting fixtures, the walls have been tinted a restful hue and at the windows new draperies fall elegantly to the floor. In an atmosphere such as this, the efforts of the chef will never go unnoticed.

For many years one of the desired accommodations with guests of The Inn has been the oceanfront Seahorse Cottage. Returning this year and delighted with the added attractiveness of their favorite abode were Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Brace of Boston. Enjoying this cottage with them were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Guild and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cabot also of Boston. Then, too, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Hubata and daughter of Kankakee, Illinois enjoyed the new look about the Seahorse as did Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mellon of New York City.

Another added feature at Ponte Vedra

Club this season is dancing five evenings each week in the Cactus Room. The Bruce Thomas Orchestra, a favorite here for the past few years, is furnishing the music for all of those would-be Marge and Gower Champions. When it's time to present prizes to the best dancers on the floor, it seems the task of choosing the number one couple becomes increasingly difficult, but becoming increasingly apparent is the fact that all enjoy these evenings to the fullest. Seen chatting between dances recently were Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Baldwin of Farmville, Virginia and Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Baldwin of Rocky Mount, North Carolina. Others on the floor included Mr. and Mrs. Paul McDonald and Mr. and Mrs. Merle St. Aubin of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford H. Domke of Jackson, Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Cedar and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cable of Louisville.

Wedding anniversaries are always such happy occasions, and, it just so happened that Mr. and Mrs. Norfleet Turner of Memphis celebrated theirs at The Inn. A cocktail party was given in their honor and the guests all agreed that Mrs. Turner was as radiant as when she was a bride and Mr. Turner

At Ponte Vedra: First, Mrs. J. E. Brand of Urbana, Ill., is ready to cut her birthday cake as Mr. Brand anxiously awaits. Next, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Forbes of Manhasset, L.I., enjoy a bit of the Florida sun. Next, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Eagles of New York City step from the Patio on a stroll about the grounds of the Inn. Next, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Free, Bethesda, Md.

couldn't have looked prouder when he said "I do" 29 years ago.

Two charming ladies from the magazine world enjoyed visits at The Inn recently. Miss Edith Ramsay (known to all as "The Lady in the Big Red Hat") was first to arrive. She is the Home Equipment Editor of the American Home. Shortly after her departure Miss Gloria Moncur, Fashion Editor of Harpers made her appearance. Both headquarter in New York, of course, and found the Florida sunshine very welcome.

It's always good news when we hear that Ponte Vedra Club members are returning to occupy homes in the Colony for the Winter. Among these are Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Keating of Minneapolis in the Edwin Craig house; Mrs. T. Channing Moore of Bronxville, N.Y. in the Priest house; Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Mance and family of Chicago are in the James Merrill oceanfront house for the third Winter; and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Pen-field in the Rucker house. The many friends of the Penfields are pleased to know that they will be here until the middle of April.

Synonymous with Ponte Vedra is golf, of course, and this sport is enjoyed daily by guests of The Inn as well as Club members. Since it isn't possible to enjoy their favorite game in areas where the home course is under several inches of snow, golfers are seized with an overwhelming desire about this time of year to drive down sun laden fairways and putt on thick grass as green as Irish shamrocks. One foursome, not suppressing this desire, came from Champaign, Illinois and included Messrs. Donald V. Dobbins, George L. Bennett, John Nixon and Lyle H. Gallivan. Incidentally, on the last day of this golfing holiday, Mr. Dobbins played his best round on the Ponte Vedra course scoring a 77, just five strokes over par. As you might imagine, with a score like that, he felt his holiday ended entirely too soon:

The Ponte Vedra Women's Golf Association has been active and enthusiastic during the recent Handicap Tournament. Mrs. G. Gibbons won over Mrs. Wheelock Whitney,

5 & 4 in the Championship Flight. The First Flight winner was Mrs. Norvin Veal over Mrs. Lawrence Pearce 1 up — 19 holes. Second Flight winner was Mrs. Dunton Howe over Mrs. Jot Carpenter, 3 & 2. These young matrons are proving to be tough competition for their husbands on the golf course.

With the golf course and the many other recreational facilities of Ponte Vedra only a few steps from the main Inn, guests find vacation pleasures so much more enjoyable. Included in the list of recent arrivals are E. F. Dutro and B. R. Straker of Zanesville, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pratt, Sioux City, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Birgbauer of Grosse Pointe (they like Ponte Vedra so much that they have purchased a home in the Colony); and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Tobelman of Pottsville, N.J.

From Vancouver, B.C. came Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Foley and Harold Foley; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Van Middlesworth of New Brunswick, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Belcher and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Roob of New York; and Mr. and Mrs. D. R. McCrimmon of Montreal.

All these vacationers and many others from various parts of the world who register here agree that they find gracious living with an abundance of true Southern hospitality!

Ponte Vedra residents ready to tee off on the back nine are J. C. Richdale, Col. V. S. Bennett, Mrs. Bennett and C. A. Nottingham. Next, John Nixon, George Bennet, Donald V. Dobbins and Lyle H. Gallivan of Champaign, Ill., pause before driving on the first tee.

CAMELBACK INN PHOTOS

ONLY ONCE IN EVERY FOUR YEARS when the left-over minutes of preceding days give us a bonus, can fun loving, sun loving guests crowd an extra day of Arizona sunshine into their Winter holidays at Camelback Inn on the colorful desert, 11 miles from Phoenix, Ariz.

Tomorrow is that extra February 29 that will not occur again until 1960. Doubtless, there are those who look ahead with anticipation to that bonus day of relaxing in our bronzing sun rays and clear, dry desert air, for the majority of the guests at Camelback these days are renewing friendships of former years.

Tomorrow's "Leap Year" arrivals are a foursome from San Francisco, the Walter H. Sullivans, due for eight weeks, and the Daniel Volkman who will spend March on the desert. Winging in from Washington, D.C., by plane for another Southwest holiday are Colonel and Mrs. L. M. (Biff) Jones.

Guests at the Inn will celebrate the extra day with a dance in the Cholla, keeping time to the music of Jimmy Whittle's orchestra. The colorful Cholla with its Western murals is an appropriate background for squares called by Inn wranglers, up from the corral for the evening, and for the cowboy melodies sung by W. J. "Brad" Bradley, head wrangler, and "Noisy" Nickels, favorites for entertainment.

As February draws to a close, it has been a busy round of parties for Winter visitors and has offered keen challenges to golfers on the velvet putting greens of Camelback and the fairways punctuated with giant saguaros at neighboring Paradise Valley Country Club.

It will be a month remembered by many prominent persons from the Eastern Seaboard social circles.

The Jack Potters of Old Westbury, L.I., joined their friends, the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitneys, also of Old Westbury, for two weeks of Winter holidaying and to be on hand, too, for Mr. Whitney's birthday last week. The Conger Goodyears, 654 Madison avenue, arrived the 25th to share desert horseback rides and tennis matches with the Whitneys during the coming month.

Concluding a four week stay today are C. W. Ulsh, president of the North Atlantic and Gulf Steamship Company and his wife. They reside at Brookville, L.I., where they are members of the Piping Rock Club.

Other Long Island visitors were the John Jacksons of Feeks Lane, Locust Valley, and the William Donovans of Rye joined the Christian Allers of the Westchester Country Club at their Mummy Mountain road home near the Inn. The Allers are veterans of 27 Winters in Florida and after one season here, purchased a desert home, nearby.

Ending a six week stay recently were the Robert L. Astes, 400 Park Avenue.

Mrs. Christian G. Allers of the Westchester Country Club in Harrison, N. Y., relaxes at Camelback Inn, Phoenix, Arizona, where she is spending a brief vacation while her Winter home near the Inn on Mummy Mountain Road is being readied for occupancy. Mr. Allers is a member of the Harrison Town Council.

Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Rutherford, president of Dominion Securities Corp. of New York, Canada, and England, have joined their friend George Gaston, 1035 Fifth Avenue, until March 4.

Absorbing the sun as they relax daily on the terrace near their casa are the W. N. Westerlunds of New Canaan and Manhattan. Whitney Bowen, president of the Stewart National Bank at Livonia, near Rochester, is vacationing with Mrs. Bowen for six weeks.

The spectacular Paradise golf course drew Phillips Turnbull, president of Rogers Peet, and two business associates Clyde Bordner and Robert Campbell for a week-end on the fairways.

A hilarious evening followed the award cocktail party for the annual Sombrero Putting Tourney won by Reynolds Johnson of San Francisco, Pacific Northwest area distributor for Volkswagon. Feminine guests at the Inn spent hours collecting unusual items to create their own "sombros" for the cocktail party. Invitations stressed that they must come with "straight faces."

Highlight of the evening was a judging contest for the most unique hats. A creation of Prickley Pear, Ocatillo, and Yucca cacti sprayed with gold for glamour won top prize for Mrs. Kjell Kvale, wife of the San Francisco English car distributor. Next in line were Mrs. H. K. Cain of Evanston, Ill., wearing a French doll astride her coiffure, and Mrs. William E. Larson of Libertyville, Ill., who modelled a close fitting cloche of cabbage leaves trimmed with brilliant radishes.

Others to be noted were a creation of Camelback Inn stationery and envelopes inspired by the subject of letters home and which was inscribed "Who wants to go on a vacation?" worn by Mrs. S. S. Houston of Chicago, and a picture hat whose brim was ornamented with golf tees, score pads, cocktail glasses, and flowers worn by a bride, Mrs.

Miss Emma Converse Davis scores a point in a ping pong tourney staged at the poolside decks known as Sunshine Alley at Camelback Inn on the desert. Miss Davis is vacationing at the Inn with her mother, Mrs. A. William Sperry, 825 Fifth Avenue, New York.

E. M. Manning Jr., of San Francisco. She is the former Miss Arvilla McGuire, nationally known tennis player who also has toured Europe in exhibition matches.

Other honeymooners at the Inn this month were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whalen of Chicago, the former Barbara Trebat; and from Minnesota, Mr. and Mrs. David Roth.

Originally a saddle and leather shop, Porters has expanded to expertly tailored cowboy and resort wear, but visitors still may visit their saddle shops to see intricate leather tooling done on elaborate saddles, boots, belts and leather goods.

Onlookers at the show were Paul Galvin of Evanston, Motorola's president, Mrs. Galvin, and the Vincent Sills, returning for another season. Earlier in the year Mr. Galvin's five-year-old grandson, Christopher, was an enthusiastic cowpoke at the Inn.

Others from Chicago area appearing daily for sunlazing and luncheon are Mrs. R. E. Nash of Evanston, who has joined her mother, Mrs. Cain; the E. J. Morrisseys of Bellewood; the John S. Arizona's colorful desert is a dramatic change from the lake country near St. Paul, Minn., home of the Herbert Bigelows and where he is commodore of the White Bear Yacht Club, and for Minneapolis attorney David Bronson, and Mrs. Bronson vacationing from their home on Lake Place. Skis have been replaced with stirrups by the Walter Schwarz of Milwaukee until Easter Day and the C. G. Skidmores of Wauwatasa, Wisc.

A month of sunliving is ahead for C. L. McCuen of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., who recently retired as head of the General Motors Research Laboratories and is back on the desert again with Mrs. McCuen. The Theodore Colmans have arrived for their third holiday of this season from Birmingham, and also from Detroit are the James H. Phinneys, president of Phinney elevator and conveying machine company.

Ardent horseback riders on the trails early each day are the James Duffys of Port Huron joining the annual circle of Inn friends which includes the Herbert Simpsons of Chicago, the Lords, and the Oliver Beaudettes of Pontiac, Mich. From Sault St. Marie is lumber company president W. R. and Mrs. Murphy.

Three leaders of the Damon Runyon Cancer Benefit Ball March 17 at La Coquille are shown above: Mrs. Stephen Sanford, an originator of the annual benefit, Mrs. Lucius P. Ordway and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton. Mrs. Sanford and Mrs. Winston Guest are co-chairmen for the ball committee, and Mrs. Hutton heads the dinner committee.

Who will be Cinderella?

La Coquille WILL BE THE SETTING where an orphan will be feted and honored at a Ball and meet the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. At this ball, which is being held for the benefit of the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund, on March 17, a "Cinderella" will be chosen by Cobina Wright, from candidates from a West coast orphanage, to reign for an evening over many titled and distinguished guests at the 1956 Palm Beach Polo Ball.

Her august "subjects" will include the Duke of Windsor and His Duchess, as well as Hollywood stars, peers and peeresses of the international set, attending the affair.

Among the many gifts, which the orphan that has been selected will receive, will be a four year scholarship at any college or university of her choice, which will be given by Stephen "Laddie" Sanford and a Hollywood screen test, made by Warner Brothers under Jack Warner's supervision, also a complete trousseau from Hattie Carnegie.

Leading off the round-the-clock festivities of the Palm Beach Polo Ball will be the Inaugural Duke of Windsor Invitational Golf Tournament of which His Royal Highness will be honorary chairman and in which he will participate.

The Ocean Room where the Palm Beach Polo Ball will be held is done predominantly in tones of blue and silver, with highlights of salmon. The floors are inlaid four foot squares of alternate black walnut and maple, while the massive columns and beams of California redwood look quite beautiful against the cork walls, which are pewter paneled. A perfect setting for a "Cinderella" to meet a Royal Highness.

Adjacent to the Ocean Room, dinners will be served under gayly covered terrace, where guests can look out over the stretch of ocean while they are dining.

Mrs. Stephen Sanford and Mrs. Winston Guest are co-chairmen

Discussing the forthcoming Damon Runyon Cancer Benefit Ball to be held at La Coquille on March 17 are Spelman Prentice, president of the club-resort of Palm Beach, Mrs. Prentice and Stephen Sanford. The latter has offered some orphan, who will be named Cinderella of the Ball, a four-year scholarship.

of the Palm Beach Polo Ball. Mrs. Edward F. Hutton will be in charge of the dinner committee. The dinners are being donated by Spelman Prentice. Others serving on committees are Mrs. Loel Guinness, Mrs. Lucius Pond Ordway, Mrs. Henry Ford II, Mrs. Spelman Prentice, Miss Noni Phipps and Miss Cary Latimer.

Cobina Wright will emcee the occasion, introducing the many celebrities from Hollywood who will fly here for the event.

The Duchess of Windsor will be honorary chairman of the Ball which promises to be the most spectacular of Florida's Winter season.

SYMBOLS OF TRADITION and smartness in Nassau, Bahama Islands, are horse-drawn surreys and nattily uniformed policemen. To the "carriage trade" of two continents, they are familiar and unchanging symbols of the Bahamas' charming, leisurely, British-colony way of life.

THE MAGNETISM this "way of life" exerts upon visitors to the Bahamas is evident—vacationers return year after year to enjoy its restful Old World flavour, along with golf, fishing, swimming, and all other sports appropriate to a tropic island paradise.

The Whitehall

LEE BRIAN

A group from Boston seen at Whitehall. From the left, Mrs. Allan Sturgis, Mrs. Michael Redstone, Michael Redstone, Allan Sturgis, Miss Philomene Spillane, social director at the Hotel.

WITH ONE of the busiest and gayest seasons in its history Whitehall enters mid-season with exciting and busy schedules. Whitehall maintains the elegant and grand manner which ruled the society of Henry M. Flagler's day. In an era of the streamlined and the accent on modern and progressive, the hotel strives for the feeling of graciousness and elegant leisure which marked bygone Palm Beach days. Charm and hospitality are key-noted in all phases of life for the guests of Whitehall.

Seen recently in the Marble Hall with Miss Philomene Spillane, social director of the hotel, were Mr. and Mrs. Allan Sturgis and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Redstone, all familiar names in the resort. All are residents of Boston. Mr. Sturgis is chairman of the board of the Pilgrim Trust in Boston; he is interested in the new jai-alai fronton here, as one of his clients is a substantial shareholder in that corporation. Mr. Redstone is well known as a motion picture official, who has among his holdings a large string of drive-in movies. The drive-in movie in Newark, N. J., is the largest in existence with capacity for 2200 cars. Year-round enjoyment is possible as individual heaters are available for every car.

The Marble Hall of Whitehall remains one of the loveliest sights on the Palm Beach scene. Used in the construction of the hall were seven varieties of rare Italian marble and in the center spiralling upwards is the magnificent Grand Staircase, the focal point of the interior of the former Flagler home.

Whitehall's calendar has been packed with activity. Ranging from week-end golf tournaments at the Palm Beach Country Club and leisure days in the sun at the Sun and Surf maintained for hotel guests to nightly entertainment at the hotel, resorters find a varied choice. With the season in full swing, Whitehall has been the scene of many benefits as well as having numerous luncheons, dinner parties and other events. The Continentals, top night club act, were extremely well received, as well as Allan Dean, the well-known English recording star.

Recent sojourners at Whitehall have been Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Fishel of New York; Mr. Fishel is well known in the jewelry world. Mrs. Mira Salomon, widow of the late S. A. Salomon, noted art collector. A portion of the Salomon art collection of old masters is displayed in the luxurious salons of Whitehall. Dr. and Mrs. Abram L. Sachar of Waltham, Mass. Dr. Sachar is president of Brandeis University.

At the Sun and Surf young Frank Kovacs has been getting in shape for the forthcoming world tennis championship matches.

TROPICAL NASSAU

By Nancy Bedingfield

NASSAU, BAHAMAS — Orchids, gadgets, games and refreshments — all these and many other items will be sold for the cause of charity as the Nassau Winter set takes over vendors' booths at the Bahamas Red Cross fair March 1 in the Government House gardens.

Among those urging the customers to "step right up" will be Mrs. Fred Wanklyn, Eunice Lady Oakes, J. H. McNeil, Mrs. John R. Colquhoun, Mrs. E. D. Toothe, the Baroness Von Hoyningen-Huene (Nancy Oakes), Sir Sydney and Lady Oakes, Mrs. Robert Holt and Arthur Vernay.

For weeks, hundreds of volunteer hours have been given in preparation for the outstanding event, which last year netted more than $20,000 for the Bahamas Red Cross. Both residents and visitors alike find it one of the island's most pleasant charity traditions, from the Governor's opening of the gates in early afternoon until the last starlight supper has been served later in the evening.

For those who enjoy musical productions, the Bahamas Playhouse is trying something new this year — eight weeks of such shows as "Song of Norway," "Kiss Me, Kate," "Die Fledermaus," and "Brigadoon." Running February 27 to March 3 is "Desert Song," followed by "Call Me Madam," "Naughty Marietta" and "Oklahoma," each scheduled for one week.

Early February was a busy time in Nassau, with Maid of Cotton and Miami-Nassau Ocean Race festivities running simultaneously.

Patricia Anne Cowden, 1956 Maid of Cotton, and a bevy of local models introduced latest cotton creations before a crowd of 300 around the pool at the Royal Victoria Hotel, where a floating ramp had been erected for the show. Benefitting was Lady Ranfurly's Children's Home. Among those modeling were the vivacious Lady Oakes, wife of Sir Sydney, and Mrs. Morgan Morgan. Following the Nassau world premiere of the far-reaching goodwill tour (first time in its 18-year history it has opened outside the United States), the contingent — carrying 22 pieces of luggage — continued on to Miami to launch the U. S. tour before going on to other countries.

Among competitors in the Miami-Nassau Ocean race were Dr. Luis Vidana of Havana, Cuban Senator whose "Criollo" captured top race honors; Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Mitchell of Annapolis and Nassau, aboard their "Finisterre"; Mr. and Mrs. William Carl of Corpus Christi, on the "Valiant"; the Fred Guggenheimers of St. Petersburg, the Harvey Conovers of Larchmont and the M. F. Hemmerdingers of Miami.

Yachtsmen aboard the 24 competing boats, along with their crews, families and friends, were feted during the days following the race by the Earl of Ranfurly, Governor of the Bahamas, and Lady Ranfurly; R. T. Symonette, first commodore of the Nassau Yacht club, and Mrs. Symonette; Dr. Vidana; Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, and the Nassau Yacht club, where the presentation dinner was held the closing night of the racing week.

Recent arrivals in Nassau have been Mr. and Mrs. Libby Sullivan of Philadelphia, who just built a home in western Nassau, and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Lambert, who last year bought a lovely house on Cable Beach.

Guesting at the Emerald Beach Hotel: Basil O'Connor, president of the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation and one-time law partner of F.D.R., and Samuel Kling, "Advice to the Lovelorn" columnist, and Mrs. Kling.

"The years seem literally to lift away" ELIZABETH ARDEN

GIVE 5 Minutes a Day!

TAKE 5 Years Away!

ELIZABETH ARDEN'S FIRMO-LIFT TREATMENT

ELIZABETH ARDEN's Firmo-Lift Treatment asks only five minutes of your time daily, plus the uplifting touch of your own two hands, to help you lift, firm and smooth your maturing skin; to help erase wrinkling, sagging, puffiness and heaviness . . . those tell-tale signs that reveal the secret of your age.

For Firmo-Lift is the special Salon treatment that Miss Arden has adapted for your own use at home, to aid you in improving the elasticity of your skin and the vital tone of your supporting facial muscles.

Firmo-Lift is the basic reason why the exquisitely-cared-for clientele of Elizabeth Arden Salons look far younger than their years.

Press on! Mould in! Work up! These are the three commandments of the Firmo-Lift ritual. Follow it religiously, daily. The Treatment Lotion, a blend of restoring, toning oils and astringents, and its companion benefactor, Special Salon Treatment Oil, seem literally to lift your years away.

To accelerate Firmo-Lift's benefits, supplement your treatments with vitamin-enriched Ardena Perfection Cream. You will find the results immensely rewarding.

and sent for a three weeks' showing in Palm Beach.

Opening to the public February 27, this new show, termed "From Boudin to Buffet," is being formally launched today with a cocktail party at the gallery. Joining Mrs.

Duggett Benson and Mrs. Archibald C. Rayner, co-directors in receiving will be Harry A. Brooks, associate director of the Knoedler Galleries who has come for the show. He will remain for the duration of the exhibition. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooks are guests at the Breakers Hotel.

Without being limited to one special school, the Knoedler show this year spans the years from the Impressionists, as represented by Camille Pissarro (1830-1903) to contemporaries such as young Andrea Segovia, born in 1921, and the aged Picasso, still painting at 75, and Maurice Vlaminck, who antedates Picasso by five years.

Though the brilliant oils are the backbone of the exhibition, from the standpoint of showiness, there are a number of drawings and watercolors by distinguished artists, with special appeal for collectors, who may not be able to aspire to larger, rarer paintings.

There are oil paintings by Eugene Boudin (1825-1908); Edouard Vuillard (1868-1940); Pierre Bonnard (1867-1947); Maurice Brianchon (1899-); Andre Derain (1880-1954); Maurice Utrillo (1883-1955); Andrea Segovia (1921 -); Armand Guillaumin (1841-1927); Pablo Picasso (1881 -); Camille Pissarro (1830-1903); Pierre Christian Ganne (contemporary); Raoul Dufy (1877-1953); Marc Chagall (1839-1899); Alfred Sisley

(1839-1899); Bernard Buffet (contemporary).

Drawings and watercolors: Henri Matisse (1869-1954); Bertha Marisot (1841-1894); Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec (1864-1901); Constantine Guys (1805-1892); Maurice Vlaminck (1876-); Pierre Bonnard (1867-1947); Paul Gauguin (1848-1903); Amedeo Modigliani (1884-1920); Picasso.

The Gauguin is of special interest here in view of the fact that a comprehensive, retrospective show of his works is still on exhibit at the Society of the Four Arts, where it will end March 4.

At the Lowe Gallery

By Betsy Buffington

THE UNIVERSITY OF MIAMI'S LOWE GALLERY was jammed with a glittering throng of nearly a thousand when "Living Today — The Miami Way" opened with a preview for members.

Sponsored by the Florida chapter of the American Institute of Decorators and The Miami Herald, the exhibition featured rooms designed by South Florida's leading decorators.

Interim director Robert Tyler Davis and Mrs. Davis greeted the enthusiastic gallery members at the preview. Mr. Davis has been interim director since August, serving both as head of Lowe Gallery and head of the Dade County Art Museum, Vizcaya.

Shortly after the preview, Dr. Jay F. W. Pearson, president of the University of Miami, announced that C. Clay Aldridge had been named as Lowe Gallery's new permanent director. Head of the Éverhart Museum, Scranton, Pa., for the past 10 years, Mr. Aldridge will take over from Mr. Davis on March 15.

Beaux Arts hostesses at the preview were: Mrs. A. Louis Brown Jr., president of the group who was stunning in a red velvet coat with matching red velvet shoes, Mrs. Kenneth Keyes Jr., Mrs. Henry H. Bryant, Miss Ethel Tombrink, Mrs. James A. Lancaster, Mrs. William Heusen, Mrs. James A. Vaughan, Mrs. Charles Davidson, Mrs. Jerry Wright, Mrs. Edward G. Grafton and Mrs.

Arthur Vanderberg Jr., son of the late Senator Vandenberg was among the many first nighters. Other notables included Miami City Manager Arthur E. Evans and Mrs. Evans, and the newest member of the Dade County Circuit Court, Judge John Prunty and Mrs. Prunty. Accompanying the Pruntys were the Donald R. Larsons. He's chairman of the U. of M.'s government department.

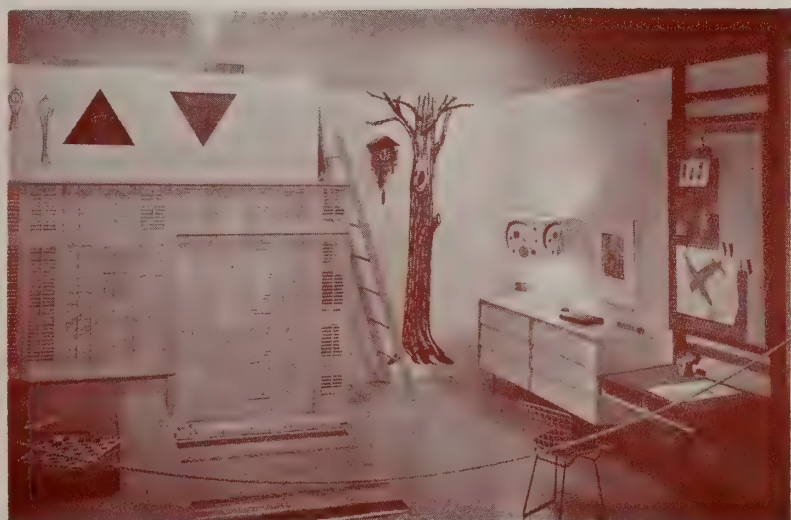

Mrs. George Pawley, president of the Opera Guild, previewed the latest Lowe Gallery show with her daughter Marcia and her niece, Mrs. Charles Pawley. Marcia Pawley was enthusiastic about Mary Albert Hinton's magnificent and authentic Franco-Italian dining corner.

Among the many Miami artists at the preview were Fran Williams, Robert Draper — he's president of the Miami Artist Association — Ethel Fisher, Gigi Aramesco and Diana Holmes. One of Fran Williams' paintings was featured in the homemaker's office — designed by Frances L. Lynch to make light of the business of running a home.

Nettie Bell Hjort, a prize winner in the recent Lowe Gallery Members Exhibition, came with her mother, Mrs. E. V. Hjort. The A. Comanors were also on hand. She's an active ceramist in the Miami Ceramic League.

TV personality Judy Wallace and architect Robert Little were discussing the proposed Lowe Gallery Indian Wing with Mr. and Mrs. George Farkas. "Plans for the new wing

Mrs. Hervey Allen and her daughter, Mrs. Melvin Marcus, admired the white and turquoise dining area designed by Anne Wrigley.

John and Crutcher Harrison were fascinated with the use of fabric as wallpaper in the early American bar designed by Richard Plumer. Mr. Plumer used a small figured fabric for the cafe curtains and the same fabric for wallpaper. His room was designed to serve both as a breakfast room and a bar.

The child's bedroom by Robert Justus drew praise from Mrs. Kenneth Keyes Jr. Featuring a nearly floor-level bed and louvered closets, the room displayed several objets d'art by members of the children's classes at Lowe Gallery.

The traditional and the modern were most effectively blended in the two rooms designed by John Beresford. His rooms won warm approval from Celia Ross for use of modern fabrics with precious antiques.

Many a Lowe Gallery member exclaimed over the guest-sitting room by Steve Steffen. Featuring a handsome sofa that converts into twin beds, the room had a wide appeal for South Floridians who are perhaps too familiar with the unexpected guest problem.

Ceramic sculptor Jon Keller was enthusiastic about the card room designed by Lois Heyward of Haygood Lassiter. "A wonderful use of color," said Miss Keller. "And don't you love that beautiful Empire chest in this room!" She was referring to Julia Powell Harvey's sitting room.

Other first nighters included Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Welsh, Mr. and Mrs. George Welsh, Mr. and Mrs. Travers Ewell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dann, Edward Goodnow, Mrs. Charles Findley, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Wenzel Jr., Mrs. Stewart Allen, Mrs. Evans-Nichol and Mrs. O. C. Kyle.

By Helen Wells

Pictured at the Floyd Akers' dinner dance at the Surf Club. From the left, Mrs. John Oliver La Gorce, Mr. Akers, Mrs. Akers, Harlow Curtice, president of General Motors, Mrs. Curtice and Dr. La Gorce. The dinner was given by the Akers for the Curtices, and was held while the GM Motorama was in progress in Miami. Dr. La Gorce is president of the National Geographic Society. They have long been Winter residents in Miami Beach and for whom the La Gorce Country Club and La Gorce Island are named.

Harlow Curtice, president of GM, and Mrs. Curtice.

The Akers are annual Winter colonists from Washington at their sumptuous apartment in the Sea View Hotel. Irma is one of Miami Beach's best dressed and wore a white peau de soie floor length gown printed in green leaves for the dinner dance.

Mrs. Curtice, a vivacious brunette, was in a simple dance length blue lace; the Curtices' young daughter, Dorothy Anne, wore aqua lace. She told of her engagement to Hugh Hartwell of Detroit and Worcester, Mass., and of their wedding plans for June 16.

The Akers' two attractive daughters, brunette Tomajean and blonde Shirley, with her husband, S. Poli Sheahan, had a table of the young set for the party. Shirley and Poli are here for a visit from Washington with their two young sons and are expecting another heir.

Harley Earl, six-feet-five, vice-president of styling for GM, and Mrs. Earl were just back from Bimini, where they were guests of Aileen and George Lyons of Detroit at Paradise Point, fabulous home of the senior Mr. Lyons.

Albert Bradley, executive vice president of finance and third in the GM lineup of Mr. Bigs, after Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of the board and Mr. Curtice, and Mrs. Bradley in a colorful green brocade, were dining and dancing.

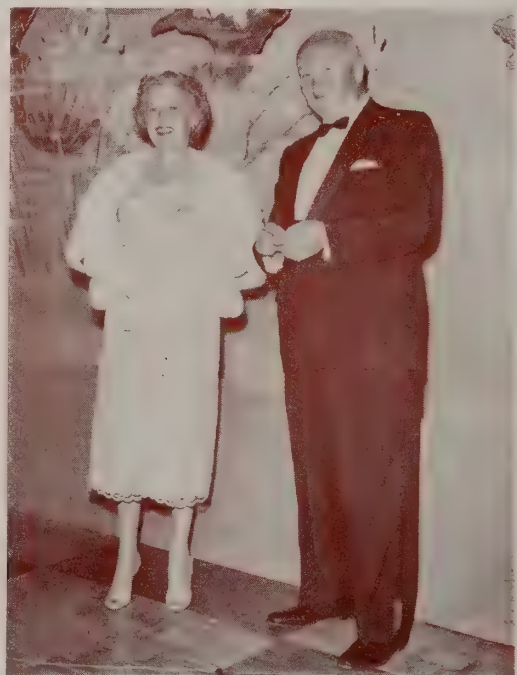

So were Don E. Ahrens, vice president of the Cadillac division, and Mrs. Ahrens, James M. Roche, general sales manager for Cadillac, and Mrs. Roche.

When asked if GM has a "Solid Gold Cadillac," Mr. Ahrens calmly replied, "Why yes! We are gilding one right now for the movies!"

Secretary of Defense, and Mrs. Kyes of Bloomfield Hills joined Ivan Wiles, vp of the Buick division, and Mrs. Wiles, John F. Wolfram, vp of Oldsmobile, and Mrs. Wolfram of Lansing, at a cocktail table.

ALL ROADS LED TO DINNER KEY when General Motors' Motorama took over in Miami . . . and it did take over. GM VIPs were wine and dined before the invitational preview when more than 9,500 guests sipped cocktails, nibbled hors d'oeuvres, and viewed the dazzling array of fantastic cars of the future and the glittering floor show. First big party for General Motors officials was a beautiful dinner dance given by Irma and Floyd Akers at the Surf Club, honoring Another party for GM bigwigs was a delightful cocktail soiree given by John S. Knight, head of the Knight newspaper chain, and Mrs. Knight at their beautiful La Gorce Island home. A wonderful quartet of singers accompanied by a string orchestra serenaded until party guests joined in singing "In My Merry Oldsmobile" and other ditties appropriate to the occasion, including a song dedicated to Harlow Curtice.

All the GM brass was present and La Gorce Island neighbors who came over for the party included Mr. and Mrs. John Galbreath (she is the former Mrs. Russell Firestone), whose wedding took place at Mr. Galbreath's home on the island last year.

Other neighbors were Elsa and Bill Stubblefield, Esther and Don Allen, Marjorie and Harold Webster, Mrs. W. Alton Jones. The Websters told of a world cruise they are taking this Spring aboard the President Jackson.

"We have box lunches of fried chicken and Kentucky ham that sustain us on the trip," Mr. Combs explained, and added,

"Whatever is left over we consume for canape on the way home!"

A huge and brilliant "100" picked out in lights greeted guests at beautiful Indian Creek Club for Committee of 100's annual dinner dance.

Leonard Roy, executive secretary of the Committee, and his dark-haired June greeted guests in the great hall, where cocktails were served. Dinner and dancing was in the new Peacock Room and dinner was a magnificent buffet for which Indian Creek is noted.

Long-time member of Committee of 100, distinguished Dr. Irving Holcomb and Mrs. Holcomb were in the company. Dr. Holcomb is a "Hoosier" from Indianapolis, where he has given the Holcomb Gardens, Holcomb Hall and Observatory to Butler College.

Lovely Mrs. Robert Wynn, there with Mr. Wynn, looked for all the world like a piece of Dresden china. Her hair is a pale lavender over her cameo features and she wore an off white lace gown with ermine wrap.

The Richard Freitags, parents of debs Joan and Jean, were dining and dancing as were

He and his cousin, Wilbur Haugen, visiting Larry from Minneapolis, greeted guests in blue Italian silk suits, a red carnation in the lapel of each.

Alfred Barton, Surf Club vp, was introducing Clay Aldridge, director of the art museum in Scranton, Pa., and charming Mrs. Aldridge, Alfred's houseguests.

Although it hasn't been announced, it is a pretty sure thing that Mr. Aldridge will be the next director of University of Miami's Lowe Gallery. A new wing will be added to the Gallery to house the Alfred Barton collection of American Indian rugs, serapes and so on, which he has given to the Gallery.

Lovely Annette Otto looked like a picture in pale lavender handkerchief linen topped with a deeper violet sweater and wearing exquisite amethyst jewelry. Her hair is snow white, her eyes deep blue and she is a talented artist herself.

Avritt Brown, long-time friend of Jerome Zerbe, came down from Delray Beach for the party. Celeste and Charles Moon, the John Murrells, Larry Haugen, Mrs. Anton Hulman (her son, Tony, owns the Indianapolis Speedway), and Mrs. Mark Honeywell were luncheon.

The truck from Key West bringing the arroz con pollo (Cuban chicken with rice) broke down en route . . . luncheon was delayed . . . but who cared with congenial company and pink champagne to sip on!

The Newkirks' daughter-in-law, Elizabeth, widow of their son, Bryan Jr., and small son, Buzzy, for whom Bryan's champion racing yacht is named, flew down from Wilmington, N. C., for the party.

Bryan's enormous yacht, the "Louvicourt," rode at anchor, resplendent in its new dress of pale green paint. The Newkirks are building a fabulous yacht club and another larger home for themselves on the ocean at Duck Key. Bryan will race his new "Buzzy" at Oyster Bay this Summer.

Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, chief of staff to Gen. MacArthur in World War II, and Mrs. Sutherland were in the party as was Jane Fisher, for whom a street on Duck Key is named.

The 150 guests at Marion and Ed Lau's cocktail party at their new quarter-of-a-million dollar home in Bal Harbour looked with wide-eyed wonder and admiration at the vast living room which opens onto the screened pool patio — the spiral marble stairs, the small elevator. And well they might!

The house is small in the number of rooms it contains, but these rooms are huge in the beautiful rambling house.

Dorothy and Tom Wood of Cincinnati had arrived at their Collins Avenue penthouse an hour before the party and were being warmly welcomed. Virginia and Jim Gerity, just down at the Surf Club apartment from Adrian, Mich., ditto.

Elizabeth and Carl Douglass came down from their Golden Beach home. Attractive Elizabeth was explaining her two black eyes, thusly, "It wasn't Carl! Our dog jumped on me from behind . . . knocked me down and out and broke my nose as well as blackened my eyes!"

Russell Heberling, past president of Indian Creek Club, told of the house he and Mrs. Heberling are building on Key Largo, near the Anglers' Club, of which he is a member.

He and Glenn Warren were in a huddle, both "stags" since Mrs. Heberling hadn't arrived and Frances Warren was in New York scouting for decorations for the Easter Lily Ball, March 6 at the Surf Club. This is an annual benefit ball, the proceeds going to the Crippled Children's Society.

Wind-up of festive entertainment for General Motors officials was the Dream Car Gala at the Surf Club, when Harley Earl was special honor guest. His new dream car is so low slung, a model of average height standing beside it touches the top with her finger tips! He named the car "Surf Club."

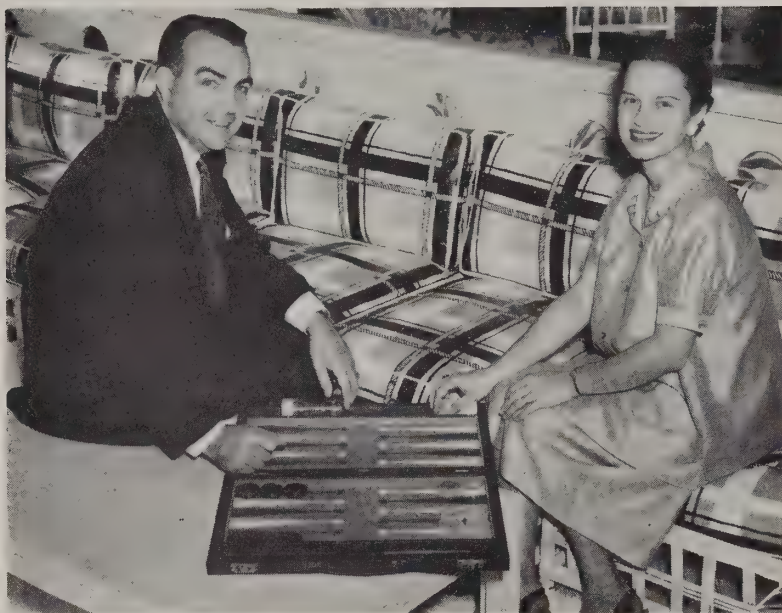

Largest party at this gala was hosted by the Don Allens for a table of 100 guests. Day after the gala the Allens gave a cocktail party at their La Gorce Island home with dinner and dancing following at Indian Creek Club. This party, too, honored GM visiting "firemen."

The Greenbrier

... Springtime Wonderland

Greenbrier vacationists Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Cherry of Detroit, Mich., at the backgammon board.

ASTER COMES EARLY this year. Bonnets and blossoms are the by word. And, with it, Spring generally arrives on the scene to help celebrate this holiest of days.

At The Greenbrier, Mother Nature has already begun her elaborate preparations. By the end of February the crocuses have popped up all over the hillside. The yellow and purple of their fat little blooms blended with the stately white of the tall, slender narcissus and the tiny snow drops polka dot the new green of the lawns to bring promise of a bright, colorful Spring.

Folks from North, South, East and West converge upon White Sulphur Springs to witness the transition of the seasons. Each day something new is added to the landscape. March brings forsythia, bridal wreath and Japanese quince. By Easter Sunday, April 1st, the double early tulips should put on a flower show, depending upon the whims of weather.

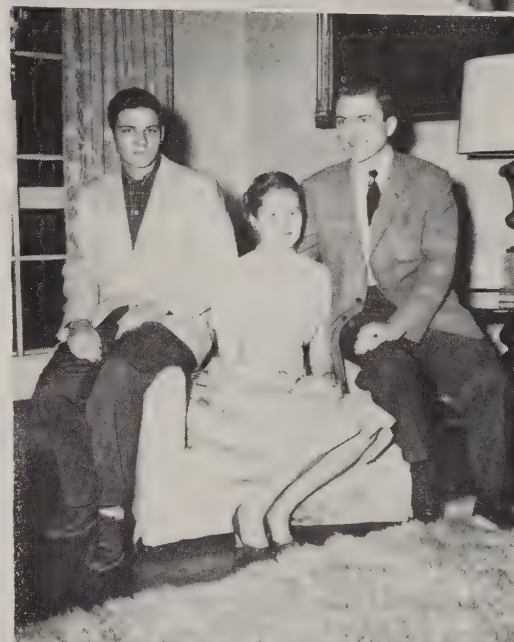

This mountain spa has long been noted as a nature lovers paradise. The flowers in the gigantic circular beds and along the many pathways change with the season. Under the direction of Walter Cosby, The Greenbrier's able agronomist, the 6,500 acre estate has been transformed into a veritable year around garden. Native rhododendron, laurel and dogwood are given great encouragement by the gardeners to flourish in the woods along the trails and surrounding the Greenbrier Gun Club. A variety of evergreen — spruce, hemlock, and pine — are plentiful, adding color to the countryside even in wintertime.

A favorite rendezvous of Greenbrier guests is the Old White garden, designed by Richard K. Webel of Innocenti & Webel, Landscape Architects of New York. Here the amateur gardener can find a hundred and one good ideas to try in his garden at home.

In doing the Old White Garden, Mr. Webel tried to catch the spirit of the south and its unique Serpentine Wall, done with the genuine materials of Colonial Days, helps to create this atmosphere. The brick whitened with age came from an old building in Charleston, built long before the Revolution. In all probability the building was the plantation of one of the rice planters of South Carolina, who were at that time perhaps the most prosperous people in the New World. A plantation owner might easily have earned $50,000 a year which was considerable in those days. Naturally, they could afford to send to England for the finest furniture, clothes and even marble. Many of the ships that went abroad filled with rice brought back as ballast handmade English brick so that many of the bricks used in Charleston came over in wooden ships before this country was born. This may well be true of the very brick used in The Greenbrier's Old White garden.

The serpentine effect of the Old White Garden wall is expressed in a free, developing line with no two curves alike. The flow of this strong line gives visual movement to make the garden interesting through all the seasons.

By placing a white picket fence atop the low sections of the wall, Mr. Webel succeeded in making the garden more intimate and the fence adds the bold line needed to make the flowers, which change with the seasons, seem important.

Another interesting aspect of the garden are its elevated flower beds, made of the same brick so that the raised beds do not stick up as an unrelated part of the garden design. This brings the flowers to the eye level of those lounging in the garden chairs.

The boxwood, for which the South is so famous, has been chosen with great care as to size and shape to place just the right plant in the right place. Pots of flowers on the steps form a colorful and important part of the garden. Statuary and fountains from Europe add to the garden's appearance of "antiquity." Contrast of colors between the statues and their background of evergreens makes both come alive and provides beauty for the eye in Winter as well as Summer.

A feature of this garden in Springtime is the generous use made of tulips. In fact, visitors come from afar to The Greenbrier this time of year just as they go to Holland, Michigan, to see the miracle of many thousands of tulip bulbs blooming at one time, for this resort plants some 60,000 bulbs each Fall. The hotel is probably the largest single importer of bulbs in this country and each year a new and exclusive variety of the sturdy flower is planted throughout the grounds. This year's surprise will be a double late peony flowered tulip, a type that cannot be found elsewhere in the United States.

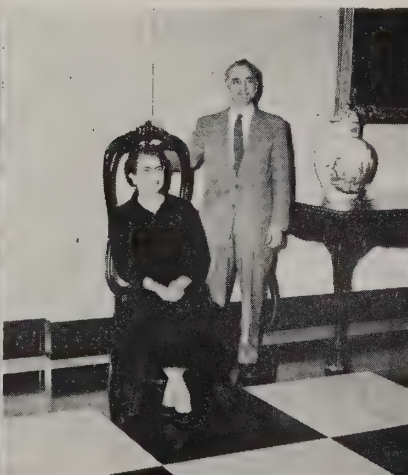

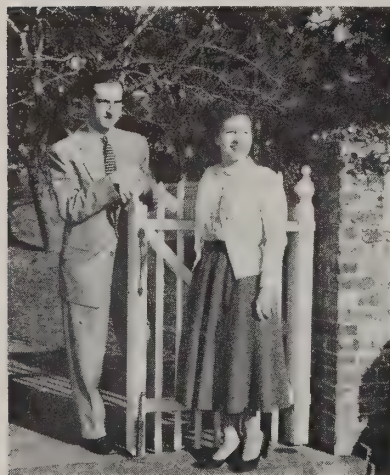

So it's no wonder folks are happy that Easter comes early this year. It means Spring has come to The Greenbrier. The activities scheduled at the resort for Easter weekend include a traditional concert by the Apollo Boys Choir of Palm Beach. Dr. Coleman Cooper, director of the choir, and the boys will entertain the guests both at an evening concert on Good Friday and at teatime on Easter Sunday.

The youngsters will have a happy holiday, for the program features an Easter Egg Hunt and Egg Rolling Contest, Swimming Races and a special "Coketail" party with games.

The adults will have their share of fun participating in the Ringer Golf Tournament, taking early morning horseback rides and the nature tours conducted by The Greenbrier's noted naturalist, Lyle Bryce, and dancing in the Old White Club.

Among those recently enjoying a Winter holiday at "The White" were Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Woody of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. C. Francis Cocke of Roanoke, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Lawson of Columbus, O.; Mrs. Edward Metzger of Milford, Pa., and her sons, Edward Jr., and Theodore Schroeder with his pretty wife, who live in East Orange, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. The Palm Beach Biltmore

By Sally Sloane

Governor and Mrs. William Stratton of Illinois were among the distinguished yachting guests visiting Colonel and Mrs. Leon Mandel of Chicago on board the "Carola," which is in port for the season at the Palm Beach Biltmore docks.

The Governor and his pretty wife, in Palm Beach for their first visit, could only manage three days away from heavy state duties, but did manage to acquire a healthy tan aboard the top deck of the "Carola."

A colorful sportswoman, Mrs. James Simpson Jr., and Mr. Simpson followed the Governor and his wife as shipboard guests of the Mandels. Mrs. Simpson, master of the fashionable Mill Creek Hunt, enjoys the enviable reputation of being one of three feminine masters of the hunt in the country. Another arrival on the "Carola" was Mrs. Mandel's attractive mother, Mrs. Elvira Panerai of Havana, who flies over every year to spend several weeks with her daughter, Carola. The group cruised up to Jacksonville to participate in a pigeon shoot and returned to port several weeks later.

A Kentucky Colonel and his wife from Lexington, in port at the Biltmore docks for their first visit, were Colonel and Mrs. P. S. Wood on board the "Dunreath," and while here they visited with their old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Taylor.

New Englanders as a rule top the list of yachting arrivals at the Biltmore—a pretty sloop from the quaint seaport town of Mystic, Conn., was the "Wallaby," skippered by Mr. and Mrs. Philip C. Barney of Farmington. Their next door neighbor from Boston was the "Souris II" with Mr. and Mrs. Henry McCasker on board, and at the helm of the "Andante" out of South Dartmouth, Mass., were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rothschild.

Two sports idols who kept things humming down at the Biltmore docks early this month were baseball slugger Ted Williams of Boston and Slammin' Sam Snead, golf gallery favorite. The duo, constantly besieged by autograph seekers, were here for a two-day, two-man angling trip. The sportsmen, who are front page news wherever they play their respective games, came to Palm Beach to settle a "fishing grudge" of long standing—namely, who was the best at deep sea angling—sport fans were knee deep at the Biltmore docks bright and early on the morning of Williams' and Snead's departure aboard two charter boats—the "Ship Ahoy" and the "Cassandra"—while the handsome baseball celebrity decided to go it alone, Snead took along Palm Beach sportsman Tommy Shevlin to lend him moral support—apparently it was helpful for Snead scored over Williams in the event, which after all was a friendly bout between the two long-time friends.

John S. Pillsbury of Pillsbury flour fame went down to Hialeah recently on the train with the Paulding Fosdicks and their son, Davie Beford. Across the aisle of the South Bay lounge car were Mr. and Mrs. Chester Dale, making their first trip of the season to Hialeah. The F. Jerome McNultys and their son Dale made up a racing group in the Hobe Sound lounge car with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foscett, Mrs. Sylvan Famel and Mrs. Rey-Millet of Paris.

Billings, Mont., visitors saw their first horse race at Hialeah when Mrs. Philip N. Fortin hosted a "ladies only" racing party for Mrs. Stanley Arkwright, Mrs. Albert Cossman, Mrs. A. W. Hartwig, Mrs. E. A. Shadoan, Mrs. R. L. Ward, Mrs. Matt Woodrow and Mrs. Paul Wold. Husbands of the visiting Western ladies took off on a stag fishing trip—the entire group flew to Palm Beach via private plane for the sole purpose of staging a surprise birthday party for Mr. Fortin.

Tallahassee

... and the Plantation Country

By Dorothy Burt Johnson

VISITORS CONTINUE to come and go in Tallahassee — down from the North, up from the South — some for special events, some because North Florida is a pleasant place to visit, open season or no open season for shooting game.

Special event visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Wright Harvey of Smithtown, Long Island, N. Y., and Lawrence Harvey of Douglaston, Long Island, N. Y., who spent several days with their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Nicholson, and their mother, Mrs. William Spence Harvey, at Rosehill Plantation. The special event was Mrs. William Harvey's ninety-first birthday.

Mrs. Fort Pipes and her daughter, Mrs. John Fitzhugh, of New Orleans have been guests of Mrs. Pipes' brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. King at Cardinal Ranch. Mrs. Pipes and Mrs. Fitzhugh, with Mrs. King, had a delightful trip to Nassau during their Florida visit.

The Kings' daughter-in-law, Mrs. Baker King, and small daughter, Helen, formerly of Tampa, were at Cardinal Ranch for a visit, too. Lieut. King flew down from Maine, where he is Adjutant at Dow Air Base in Bangor, and took his family back with him.

Admiral and Mrs. S. P. Ginder were hosts for several days to Captain and Mrs. W. M. Walsh of Virginia Beach, Va.

General and Mrs. William Brooks Bradford, who have been Wintering in San Antonio, Texas, were recent guests of General Bradford's sister-in-law, Mrs. E. W. Richardson, and Mr. Richardson, and his cousin, Fred Elliot and Mrs. Elliot. The Bradfords visited in Sarasota before returning to their home in Asheville, N. C.

Another guest of the E. W. Richardsons has been Mrs. Andres Iglesias of Boston. Mrs. Iglesias' daughter, Gabrielle, who has visited here frequently, was married recently in Boston to Baron Thierry van Zuylen van Nyevelt, son of Baron Egmont van Zuylen van Nyevelt van der Haar, Belgian delegate on the Human Rights Commission in the United Nations. After a honeymoon in Mexico, the young couple will live in Paris.

Mrs. Iglesias visited her sister, Mrs. Martin Withers, in Tampa before coming to Tallahassee.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wylie of Miami were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Louis Shores on the occasion of Mr. Wylie's commencement address at Florida State University. The Wylies sailed soon after their visit in Tallahassee for Hawaii, where they spent two weeks with their son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. and Mrs. Taylor Pryor, and new grandson, Tedmund Wylie Pryor. Mr. and Mrs. Wylie will continue on to Asia and Europe after their visit in Hawaii, and will be back in Miami on the 21st of April.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lawrence Ingalls and their sons, Robert and John, of Cleveland, have been at Forshalee Plantation with Mr. Ingalls' parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Ingalls.

Mrs. Charles Seewir of St. Louis spent some time here with her sister, Mrs. Dan Kenshalo and Mr. Kenshalo.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Riley have returned to their home in New Orleans after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Julien C. Headley at Bull Run Plantation.

Miss Frances Griscom has had as her guest at Water Oak Plantation Mrs. G. S. Swift of Chicago.

Miss Charlotte Golden of Thomasville, Ga., and Gene Vereen Jr. of Moultrie, Ga., were recent week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brock.

Among Tallahassee visitors to the Gasparilla festivities in Tampa were Governor and Mrs. LeRoy Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Jones and Mrs. Jerone Sheip. Mr. and Mrs. Jones were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wooten and Mrs. Sheip visited Mrs. James Toney.

Mrs. Edmund Lewandowski of Milwaukee, formerly of Tallahassee, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Watson.

Mrs. Lewandowski was honored at a series of parties during her visit. Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Davis and Dr. and Mrs. J. Paul Reynolds gave a coffee in her honor at the Davis home, Mrs. Charles Rovetta entertained at a luncheon, Mrs. P. M. Schuchart was hostess at a morning coffee, and Dr. and Mrs. Karl Dittmer gave an informal Recent visitors to "The Grove," temporary Governor's mansion, were a large group of Seminole Indians, who called to present the Governor and First Lady with colorful Seminole costumes.

Mrs. Collins received a traditional dress and the Governor was given a jacket.

The group was much interested in the silver punch ladle from the battleship Florida, which is ornamented on the handle with a picture of Osceola, famous Seminole Chief. Four descendants of Osceola were in the several dozen members of the tribe who made the trip to Tallahassee for the presentation.

"Angel Street," by Patrick Hamilton, was the second play of the season given by the Tallahassee Little Theatre.

In the cast were Mrs. Kathryn Reece Haun, Richard Joel, Hal Bergman, Mrs. Lewis Josephson and Mrs. John Anderson. The play was directed by John Anderson and Frank Mitch. Miss Cecil Tracy was stage manager and the settings were done by Miss Mary Lou Norwood. Costumes were by Mrs. Ethel Farnsworth, and Perry Neel was in charge of lighting effects.

Members of the high school set were entertained recently at a formal dance given at the Tallahassee Woman's Club. Hostesses were Misses Linda Arnow, Barbara Cummins, Jean Davies, Patsy Flanagan, Pat Hendricks, Gail Nelson, Linda Owens, Chris Patronis, Jane Powell and Arlene Ritchie.

At the Quo Vadis Restaurant: Mr. and Mrs. Fred O. Schoeffer; Mrs. Samuel Di Falco, wife of Judge Di Falco, and Mrs. Robert Wagner, wife of Mayor Wagner of New York City.

A "GARDEN OF SPRING FASHIONS," plus many due for Summer blooming, came into full flower in the twelfth annual March of Dimes Fashion Show at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Combining the talents of America's top fashion designers with the arts and personalities of Broadway and Hollywood, the gala showing for the benefit of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis gave the audience its traditional first glimpse of Spring clothes in scenes suggested by current plays, and against special "floral arrangements" by Marcel Vertes, who designed the dominant formal garden stage setting for the presentation.

The opening appeal for the showing was made by Shirley Booth, and the closing by Paul Muni.

Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation, greeted the audience, and Miss Booth introduced the 1956 March of Dimes poster boy, five-year-old Tommy Woodward of Baltimore, who was escorted down the runway by Ernest Borgnine ("Marty").

The fashion parade began with master of ceremonies Andy Griffith ("No Time for Sergeants") introducing actresses Gladys Cooper and Betsy von Furstenberg, who took over in their "Chalk Garden" roles of grandmother and granddaughter for the Spring 1956 silhouette scene pointing up the revival of the slim, soignée look of 1910, and concluded on a hilarious note with the appearance of Elsa Maxwell in her Shakespearean role of Tatiana, Queen of the Fairies, in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," wearing a Miguel Ferreras evening gown of violet chiffon and a queenly jewelled crown. She was escorted by Andy Griffith as Oberon, King of the Fairies, and four little fairies.

The World of Society was represented by the appearance on the scene of Mrs. Winston F. C. Guest, wearing Mainbocher's trained lame gown of silver and gold with a sash of pale blue satin; Mrs. Orson Munn (Carrie Munn) in a pale pink organdy and taffeta dress draped with black lace of her own designing; and Mrs. Alfred de Liagre in a light blue satin evening dress embroidered with gold and silver and sashed in deeper blue, by Elizabeth Arden.

Mrs. Sean Morton Downey Jr. modeled a romantic-looking Jane Derby summer evening dress of white embroidered organdy run through with wide, pale blue satin on the bodice and skirt; and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, an ankle length ball dress in daffodil and mushroom coloring, designed by Charles James.

Among those in the audience taking notes on the latest fashions were such luminaries as Mrs. V. Beaumont Allen, Mrs. George L. Armour, Mrs. Clendenin Bailey, Mrs. Gerard Belmont, Elgee Bove, Mrs. Mellon Bruce, Mrs. Theodore Boyd, Mrs. Arde Bulova, Miss Margaret Case, Ceil Chapman, Mrs. Julien Chaqueneau, Miss Leonora Corbett, Vincent Coppola, Baroness Jacqueline de Gunzburg, Mrs. Peter Gladstone, Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein 2d, Mrs. Leland Hayward, Mrs. James Kilgallen, Mrs. Jesse Lehman, Miss Margaret Leighton, Mrs. Joshua Logan, Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, Miss Laura Maginnis, Basil O'Connor, Countess Sala, Miss Mala Rubinstein, Mrs. Joseph Kingsbury Smith, Mrs. Elizabeth W. One of the most beautiful weddings of the season was the marriage of Barbara Joan Schmid, one of the loveliest debutantes of this season, to Walter Turnbull Shirley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Shirley of New York and Palm Beach. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Chase in St.

as flowers were used to decorate the ballroom. There was a Roaring Twenties type carnival midway that offered traditional games and diversions. A cafe bar in a simulated outdoor setting adjoined the ballroom. Among those who had guests at the fete were Mrs. Walter P. American Society For The Aged...

Latest Humanitarian Venture in Palm Beach

By Emilie Keyes

ALL PHOTOS BY MCCLELLAN

Dr. George Sperti, left, director of the Institutum Divi Thomae Foundation and treasurer of the American Society for the Aged, and Frank J. Hale, president and guiding spirit behind the American Society for the Aged, pose before the doorway of Emeritus Hall, A.S.A. headquarters.

IT TOOK THE NAME of Mary Pickford to bring to light a new activity in Palm Beach, one of such scientific and humanitarian significance that it should do much to offset belief that the community is one devoted almost entirely to social chi-chi.

So quietly had Frank J. Hale, president of the National Yeast Company and one of the original spirits behind the Palm Beach Playhouse, gone about his job that the American Society for the Aged was an accomplished fact before Palm Beach knew it was a-growing over on East Royal Poinciana Way.

The virtually unheralded development of the American Society for the Aged was in the best tradition that accompanied the growth of the Institutum Divi Thomae Foundation.

Few persons in Palm Beach are probably cognizant of the fact that for more than 15 years this foundation for cancer research, with its by-products of commercial discoveries that have helped provide funds for the work, has been a part of the Palm Beach scene.

Turned over to the Institutum back in 1940 by the late Colonel Edward R. Bradley, the property once housed the boom-time Oasis Club.

Through a grant from the William H. Donner Foundation, Donner Hall had been reconstructed into laboratory and quarters for the Institutum.

But through the years, there was more publicity about the time in which the Palm Beach Playhouse, and later the Apollo Boys Choir, were housed in the former club building than about the actual work of the Institutum.

Then, a little more than a year ago, something new was added. The Institutum acquired the ocean-front property adjoining, known as the Spring Estate.

From an initial meeting of a group inter-

Dr. E. V. Cowdry, of the Washington University Medical School, St. Louis, chairman of the board of the American Society for the Aged.

ested in the problems of old age, the Geriatrics Foundation developed into the American Society for the Aged, and the property on East Poinciana Way was designated as headquarters.

Last Fall, Frank Hale moved definitely into the picture. In a whirlwind manner in keeping with his business and theatrical practices, he undertook the complete renovation, remodeling and refurnishing of the property to fashion it into a real home to house the American Society for the Aged, with the view to supplementing and dovetailing the A.S.A. with the Institutum. There was plenty of room for both.

Frank Hale won't talk. He won't say how much he's spent personally, though it's admitted the figure would probably run into six figures.

In two months' time with a crew of 31 men working day and night, he's swept through the existing building. Countless gallons of paint have been used; literally acres of black and white asphalt tile floors have been laid.

Structural changes have been made. Barracks-like rooms have been fashioned into attractive suites. Rooms and apartments have been made spic and spanish with new furniture, new draperies, wall-to-wall floor coverings.

Donner Hall is being completely re-equipped with new laboratory equipment.

The result: Emeritus Hall, heart of A.S.A., with 21 bedroom suites overlooking the patio; a huge library and assembly room on the second floor; dining hall and kitchen and administrative offices on the first; the president's house on the ocean front with facilities for at least a dozen guests; living quarters adjacent; Pinewood Cottage with living quarters for both A.S.A. and Institutum Staff; Donner Hall with complete laboratories for the Institutum, but available for A.S.A.; over-all facilities for at least more than 100 scientists and students.

Backed by these potential possibilities for housing and carrying on research, the A.S.A. is now ready to launch its three-fold program: To support research in conjunction with the sociological and medical aspects of old age, with the view of enriching life of the aged; to help educate people to the fact that there are 15,000,000 persons in the United States over 65; in Emeritus Hall to concentrate the scholarship of men forced to retire because of arbitrary age, when they have the potential power to aid in this work by contributing their knowledge.

This attractive tropical patio, which has had an interesting history since its days as part of the boom days Oasis Club, is now a part of the permanent headquarters for the American Society for the Aged.

Dr. Reuben L. Kahn, Department of Serology, of the University of Michigan, and his wife have been the first residents at Emeritus Hall this Winter while Dr. Kahn continued work on a book. He has now returned to the University of Michigan, where he will go on terminal leave in August, and will then be free if he wishes to work at Emeritus Hall.

Though the work is just getting underway, eventually the big patio, once the setting for Palm Beach society's children boxing bouts, will be a veritable campus of scientists and students taking advantage of the opportunities for research, study and writing.

Miss Pickford and her husband, Buddy Rogers, are the chairman and co-chairman of A.S.A. It was when they came to Palm Beach for a board meeting of the society that the public began to become cognizant of what was going on. First meeting of the board was in January, another is to be held here in March.

Other members of the board are, Mr. Hale, president; Mrs. Frank J. Lewis, Palm Beach and Chicago, vice president; Harry Murphy, New York, vice president and manager of the New York office at 55 West 42nd Street; Dr. George S. Sperti, treasurer; Mrs. George de Gripenberg, New York; Dr. Arthur Localio.

Dr. Sperti is director and guiding spirit of the Institutum. His name is appended to many of the commercial products that provide finances for the over-all project.

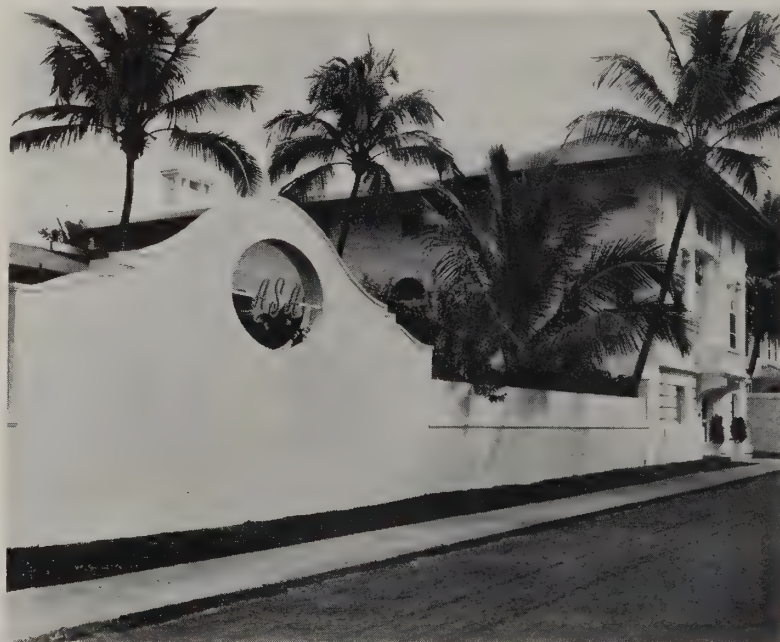

Dr. E. V. Cowdry, of the Washington University Medical Society, St. Louis, is chairman of the Advisory and Medical School. Other members: Dr. Kahn, Dr. Wilma Donahue, Institute of Human Adjustment, University of Michigan; Dr. Albert Lansing, department of anatomy, Emory University, Atlanta; Dr. Freddie Homburger, New England Medical Center, Boston; Dr. Ernest W. Burgess, University of Chicago; Dr. Oscar J. Kaplan, San Diego State College.

Dr. Reuben L. Kahn, Department of Serology of the University of Michigan Hospital, and his wife, relax in a sunny corner of the patio of Emeritus Hall, American Society for the Aged. Dr. Kahn is a director of A.S.A., and he and his wife are first Winter guests at A.S.A. On vacation for several weeks, he is completing a new book.

A corner of the library on the second floor of Emeritus Hall, featuring a portrait of Mary Pickford, famed film star who is chairman of the board of directors of the American Society for the Aged.

An heroic sized "A.S.A." set in the handsome white wall signals that this property is headquarters for the American Society for the Aged, now housed in completely remodeled properties that were known in boom days as the Oasis Club. Emeritus Hall is shown at the right, while over the wall peeps the roof of the suites where retired scientists will live and work.

Those Anglerettes . . .

to stage their own
fishing tournaments*

Two chilly but enthusiastic anglerettes, Mrs. Orton Dale of West Palm Beach and Mrs. Richard Beinecke of Palm Beach, prepare for a day's fishing in the first annual IWFA tournament.

IF ANYONE ever writes the memoirs of Palm Beach fishing activities, then high on the list should be the amazing success story of the International Women's Fishing Association, which staged its first annual sailfish tournament here in January.

The anglerettes even drew exceptional cooperation from the fighting sailfish, which struck with such rapidity and eagerness that the feminine anglers ran up a tournament score of some 80 silversides during the two-day competition, won by Mrs. Edward Cosgrove, Palm Beach and LeSueur, Minn. This kind of Gulf Stream action put the Association's first big event in the record books as one of the most successful tournaments ever staged off the Palm Beaches.

Laden with victory trophies, Mrs. Edward Cosgrove of LeSueur, Minn., receives her prizes as overall winner of the first annual tournament of the International Women's Fishing Association.

Vernor of Dallas, Texas, who tied for third place in the tournament and tied for runner-up the first day; Mrs. Bayard Stockton III of Princeton, N. J., second day winner; Mrs. S. L. Sands of Nassau, Bahamas, who won the light tackle award.

← She doesn't know it yet, but Mrs. Edward Cosgrove of LeSueur, Minn., finishing her second day of competition, has just won the first annual tournament of the International Women's Fishing Association.

But it took more than cooperative sailfish to gain success and the groundwork for this tournament and the Association itself goes back to last March when a trio of sports-women sat down to form the organization.

That trio was the late Mrs. A. D. "Denny" Crowninshield, who served as the Association's first president; Mrs. Thomas T. "Ginny" Sherwood and Mrs. John "Kay" Rybovich. The story is that the anglerettes were determined to have a fishing association of their own since they had been barred from competition in a similar international angling group — which in late years has become an organization for men only.

Maybe that is the reason someone took the initials of the organization, IWFA, and coined the slogan, "I Will Fish Also."

After the initial meeting, it took two weeks to sign 16 members and in three months time there were 100 members.

When the tournament ended in mid-January the group had a membership of 210 anglerettes whose home addresses read from the Midwest to Texas and from New York south to the British West Indies.

Following the death of "Denny" Crowninshield, Mrs. P. A. B. Widener, Palm Beach and Lexington, Ky., took over as president of the group. She was unable to take part in the Association's first tournament but was on the scene prior to the event to help make final arrangements.

The first annual sailfish competition was staged January 14 and 15 with more than 60 competitors — half of them from outside the State of Florida.

The tournament emphasized conservation of sailfish and anglerettes were scored on the number of sails released. The fighters that were boated for mounts — there were only three during the event — didn't count in the tournament tallies.

Mrs. Cosgrove on her first day out took over the tourney lead when she released four sails. Mrs. L. T. Verner, Dallas, Texas, and Mrs. R. H. S. Kaufman, Islamorada, Florida, were in second spot with three releases each. The anglerettes accounted for 48 sails in the opening round.

On the second day, top scorer was Mrs. Bayard Stockton III, Princeton, N. J., who whipped five sails — one which was boated and not scored.

However, Mrs. Cosgrove was not idle and added her fifth release on the second day, which gave her the tournament championship.

Three sports cruisers chugging down a smoky Palm Beach inlet with crews of warmly-wrapped anglerettes preparing for their final days' fishing in the IWFA tournament. The "Sail Ahoy" is proudly flying the triangular pennants which signify the previous day's sailfish releases.

Other winners of the event, all of whom were presented awards at a victory dinner held at the South Ocean Restaurant, were:

Mrs. Cosgrove, high point scorer first day.

Mrs. Stockton, high point scorer second day.

Mrs. Verner and Mrs. Kaufman, point runner-up first day.

Mrs. James Coleman, South Otselic, N. Y., and Mrs. Richard Forman, Coconut Grove, point runner-up second day.

Mrs. George M. Howard, Brookfield, Conn., first sail released first day.

Mrs. Forman, first sail released second day.

Mrs. A. L. Mathers, Coral Gables, heaviest dolphin first day.

Mrs. Paul Spears, Ft. Lauderdale, heaviest dolphin second day.

Mrs. S. L. Sands, Nassau, Bahamas, B.W.I., light tackle award.

Mrs. Lu Lorrie, Palm Beach, hard luck award — she lost four sails all in one day because of a faulty line.

Mrs. Gustave Schirmer, Greenwich, Conn.,

Mrs. Verner, Mrs. Kaufman and Mrs. Forman tied for second and third spots in total tournament points.

Behind the scenes of the event in addition to President Widener and Mrs. Sherwood, who was tournament director, were the other officers of the IWFA — Mrs. Rybovich, secretary; Mrs. Allison Fleitas and Mrs. Louis A. Ferguson Jr., who headed the trophy and public relations committees.

The general tournament committee also included Mrs. Orland Greene, Sewickley, Pa., Mrs. Verner, Mrs. Howard Craig, Bass River, Mass., Mrs. Lew Parkinson, Riviera Beach, Mrs. Mathers and Mrs. Louis Marron, New York City.

With their first tournament in the record books, the Association is looking forward to its annual meeting in April when plans for next year's event will begin taking shape.

Meantime the group has tentative plans for a tarpon tournament in the Florida Keys and a bass contest in the Everglades. These special events supplement the Association's regular monthly and yearly awards for a large variety of catches.

The Natchez Pilgrimage...

The Old South Lives Again in Gracious Hospitality amidst the Camellias and Azaleas

NATCHEZ, bathed in the traditions of the romantic South, opens its fine old doors to allow the lover of beauty, antiquity and Southland history to peak at a fabulous vanished era when the Natchez Pilgrimage begins March 2.

Tourists will be led through fine old homes whose historical roots go as far back as days of the Spanish explorer DeSoto and the French colonizer LaSalle, through the periods of English and Spanish rule to the time when Natchez, as a territory of the United States, began the great cotton epoch.

Natchez — on high bluffs overlooking the lore laden Mississippi River, stands as a living shrine to the days when it was the queen city of social and cultural life in the Old Southwest, romance flourished against the insistent background music of the picturesque steamboats forging the turbulent Mississippi waters, and cotton was King.

Natchez — the seat of such homes as "Green Leaves," "D'Evereux," "Dunleith," "Rosalie," "Longwood," "Gloucester," "Arlington," "Stanton Hall" and "Elmscourt," magnificent landmarks of history that will be opened to the public as part of the tour of colonial and ante-bellum homes sponsored by The Pilgrimage Garden Club and the Natchez Garden Club.

February finds Natchez a beehive of activity preparing for this annual event. Home owners are making necessary preparations for the tours, the Confederate Pageant Committee is taking measurements for costumes, planning stage settings, forming casts for the tableaux, townspeople are filled with eager anticipation of the month-long event which plays so prominent a part in this small river town.

The Natchez Pilgrimage tour embraces a total of thirty beautiful homes, beginning with "The Elms," built in 1782 during the Spanish era. Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kellogg, the home has been in possession of the present family for five generations. "The Elms" has slender, hand-turned bannisters on the upper galleries and hand wrought

Mrs. J. Balfour Miller serves tea to her hostesses at "Hope Farm" during Pilgrimage. "Hope Farm" incorporates two separate houses joined to each other by the galleries. The larger of the two was built in 1775. In 1789 the front house was built by the Spanish Governor, Don Carlos de Grandpre. Only wooden pegs were used in this house constructed by the tongue and groove method. Nails present now are signs of recent repairs. Furnished entirely with antiques, "Hope Farm" boasts many museum pieces such as its piano, hand-painted applewood chairs, and the hanging light over the dining room table. The rooms in the larger house consist mostly of unusual and beautiful bedrooms—five bedrooms in all. "Hope Farm" is owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. Balfour Miller. Mrs. Miller is the originator of the Natchez Pilgrimage, for which civic achievement she was presented with the annual trophy awarded by the City Bank & Trust Company. She is likewise known for her illustrated lectures on "Natchez—Where the Old South Still Lives."

Mrs. Lenox Stanton, in costume ready to receive guests at "Gloucester," is a leader in Pilgrimage activities. She has served as president of the Pilgrimage Garden Club and is a permanent member of the Executive Board.

"Monteigne," the home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kendall, was built in 1855 by Confederate General William T. Martin. Classic and beautiful, it is surrounded by century old live oaks and a superb collection of azaleas and camellias.

iron strap hinges on the blinds. The unique curved iron stairway, thought to be from Portugal, was once outside the house and led from one gallery to another. A bell cord, once used to summon the slaves, still hangs in each room, the tone of the bell indicating from which room the call came. Windows look out on the old-fashioned garden, colorful camellias sparkling in the sunlight and the soft scent of the azaleas being picked up by drifting breezes.

"Dunleith," owned by Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Carpenter, has been in the Carpenter family for five generations. It was built in 1847 by Charles and Mary Dahlgren on a part of the original 1700-acre Spanish land grant to the Routh family. "Dunleith" is situated in a landscaped park of terraces and magnificent oaks. Architecturally it represents a Greek Temple, stately columns rising on all four sides and is representative of the dignity and splendor of a bygone era.

One of the most distinguished homes in Natchez is "Arlington," the home of Mrs. Hubert Barnum. Built overlooking the Mississippi River by Jane Surget White in 1816, "Arlington" still contains its original furnishings. It is a pure Southern Colonial type of brick construction with Doric columns and majestic fan-lights over carved doorways. Every window and outside door has a facing

Mrs. J. Balfour Miller, originator and promoter of the Natchez Pilgrimage, has received recognition from many sources. She was given an award from the city of Natchez and a national award from the Garden Club of America for civic achievement in connection with the Natchez Pilgrimage. The National Historic Association also recognized her accomplishments. Mrs. Miller opened the first Republican headquarters ever to be in Natchez and subsequently was made a member of the United States National Commission of UNESCO.

of white marble, accenting the white marble entrance steps and portico. Original paintings by Maratti, Dolce, Canaletti, Mario de Fiore and Findaza hang in the hall, now used as a ballroom and art gallery. Rare china and crystal and silver by Tallois of Paris are on exhibit in the dining room. Exquisite craftsmanship on cornices, carved lintels, gold leaf mirrors and finely cut interior-trim enhance the charm of "Arlington."

The octagonal shaped "Longwood," under construction at the beginning of the War Between the States and never completed with the exception of the first floor, stands as a haunting and ghostly memory of the tragedies of war. In 1861, when the Call to Arms was sounded, workmen left pails of paint, tools and brushes scattered through the upper floors of "Longwood" and they stand there today. Empty niches, unfinished grandeur and the beginnings of magnificent opulence stare hollowly at the visitor.

"Connelly's Tavern" on Ellicott's Hill at the end of the Natchez Trace was purchased by the Natchez Garden Club as its major project in the program for the restoration of historic Natchez buildings. This famous and romantic inn, built before 1795, presents a living picture of fabulous pioneer days in the Natchez country. In its sharply contrasting presentments of primitive pioneer living and imported old-world elegance, "Connelly's Tavern" is an architectural gem, interesting in every detail from the rare Waterford crystal chandelier in the Grand Ballroom to the copper tankards on the timeworn and bullet-dented bar. Of special interest is the old pianoforte played at the ball given for Lafayette in 1825. Just behind the Tavern is the hill where, in 1797, in defiance of Spain, Major Andrew Ellicott raised the American Flag for the first time in the Lower Mississippi Valley.

Framed by a beautiful fan-light door at "Arlington" is Mrs. W. E. Hester, formerly of Natchez, but now of Jackson, Miss. "Arlington," the home of Mrs. Hubert Barnum, was built in 1816 by Pierre Surget for his daughter, Jane White. It contains a treasure of family heirlooms and is one of the very handsome houses of Natchez.

Mrs. William Kendall, shown in the drawing room at "Monteigne," is National Democratic Committeewoman of Mississippi.

"Holly Hedges," the Earl Hart Millers' home, is handsomely furnished with fine antiques. In this picture is an 18th century painting of Sir Archibald and Lady Grant. It is said that Hogart painted Sir Archibald and that one of his students painted his wife. The piano is a Broadwood 18th century instrument, one octave short. The Sheraton case is of mahogany with satinwood inlays. Armillary spheres on the piano are of interest, as is the large and very handsome ratchet folio container. (Mr. Miller is a nationally-known interior decorator.)

Garden Club, have adopted a restoration and beautification program to perpetuate for posterity the perfect and rare example of the beloved Old South of long ago.

The Pilgrimage Garden Club chose as its restoration project "Stanton Hall," which was purchased by the club in 1937 and has now been completely restored and furnished in keeping with its tradition. Built in 1851 by Frederick Stanton, it is one of the most palatial and imposing ante-bellum houses in the South. Towering fluted columns support the double-decked galleries enclosed in their wrought-iron grille rails of roses. Four tremendous rooms with a great hall between form the lower floor. Suspended midway the hall is a ceiling arch carved in oriental Beltzhoover, president of the Pilgrimage Garden Club, with her daughters, Mrs. Richard Ellis Conner and Mrs. George Morrison, and their children, Richard Jr., Aylett Buckner and Ruthie Conner, George Beltzhoover Morrison and his sister, Ann Borodel Morrison. "Green Leaves," framed by branches of age-old live oak trees and a towering magnolia was built prior to the War of 1812. Mrs. Melchior R. Beltzhoover is a granddaughter-in-law of the late George Washington Koontz, banker and close friend of President Davis and General Robert E. Lee, who was commissioned to go abroad and negotiate loans for the Confederate Government. His portrait, with his wife's and a portrait of grandchildren, Roane and Melchior Roth Beltzhoover, hang in the hall at "Green Leaves." The furnishings of "Green Leaves" remain intact. Of interest in "Green Leaves" are gold leaf mirrors, bronze chandeliers, hand-carved furniture and one of three sets of china painted by John James Audubon and a bronze lamp with rare lithopane shade. Legend tells that the Natchez Indians held their pow-wows under the branches of the magnificent live oak tree in the court garden of "Green Leaves."

Queen Jane Randolph Feltus and King Robert Young Wood Jr., as they appeared when reigning over the Confederate Pageant during the Natchez Pilgrimage. Miss Feltus, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William James Feltus, graduated from Sweet Briar College and is now in New York City attending the Neighborhood Play House School of the Theatre. She has been in summer stock for two seasons, first with the Rice Play House at Martha's Vineyard, Mass., and last Summer with the Briar Patch Theatre at Sweet Briar, Va. On the right is a magnificent 72-foot ballroom, where immense mirrors at opposite ends make endless reflection of the myriad chandelier lights between. In the great dining room, vast dimensions are complemented with marble-mantled twin fireplaces and twin chandeliers, the latter fashioned to represent the Natchez Indians from whom the town derives its name.

"Connelly's Tavern" on Ellicott's Hill at the end of the Natchez Trace was purchased by the Natchez Garden Club as its major project. This famous and romantic inn, built before 1795, represents a living picture of fabulous pioneer days in the Natchez country. In its sharply contrasting presentments of primitive pioneer living and imported old-world elegance "Connelly's Tavern" is an architectural gem, interesting in every detail from the rare Waterford crystal chandelier in the Grand Ballroom to the copper tankards on the timeworn and bullet-dented bar. Just behind the "Tavern" is the hill where, in 1797, in defiance of Spain, Major Andrew Ellicott raised the American Flag for the first time in the Lower Mississippi Valley.

Of great social importance each year in Natchez is the choosing of the king and queen to reign over the Confederate Pageant.

Young people take part in the tableaux almost from babyhood. The pageant is, of course, the climax of the Patchez Pilgrimage. An example of the participation is shown in the case of Mrs. Basil Ballard. When she was a small child she was a page, or train bearer, for the queen. She later took part in many tableaux, including the court. Her sister was a queen. This year Mrs. Ballard's little five-year-old daughter, Dix, will be a page.

This tour, become famous throughout America since its inception in 1932 by Mrs. J. Balfour Miller, has become not only an integral part of the South, but all of the United States as well.

In all the thirty homes in the tour, hostesses in costumes of the 1860's welcome guests. At "Linden," Mrs. Frank Fauntleroy graciously greets guests with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Elliott Trimble. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kellogg are known for their hospitality at "The Elms." Nowhere does one receive greater hospitality than at "Richmond," the home of the John Shelby Marshalls.

Natchez — standing firm against the onslaught of time. Natchez — beautiful, dignified and charming. This is what participants in The Natchez Pilgrimage March 2 through March 31, will see as a gracious city plays proud hostess to the past.

Yachts and Docks

By FRANK ROHR JR.

THE FIRST TOURNAMENT of the International Women's Fishing Association was held January 14 and 15, and the contest occupied many Sailfish Yacht and Beach Club boats.

"Cassandra II," owned by H. Tyson Lykes of Tampa, was out both days with the tournament's second-place winner, Mrs. Gustave Schirmer of Greenwich, Conn. "Libber II," owned by Jack Wherry of Greenville, S. C., also fished for the IWFA.

The Silver Sailfish Derby, which ran through February 10, and the Sailfish Club's private tournament, which runs until early Spring, were both well under way last month and continued to attract Sailfish Club sports cruisers.

Donald D. Curran of Palm Beach on his "Yen-A-Gen," and C. F. Johnson, fishing on the Rybovich-built "Butterball," were out often.

"Esther" and "Epcor," two active Sailfish Club boats owned by A. C. Mills of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Fred Englehorn of Newark, N. J., were familiar competitors, as was Richard Beinecke's "Ric-A-Dor II" of Palm Beach.

Allison Fleitas' "Vael" and J. K. Thompkins' "Bettyjack IV" of Palm Beach and Philadelphia, also fished the Derby.

Dell Kroehler returned from Chicago January 21 for a mid-Winter fishing holiday on his cruiser "Lark."

The Australian dock's newest arrival was the 75-foot cruiser "Alimar," owned by Karl J. Eisenhardt of Baltimore, Md. After a complete Winter overhaul, "Alimar" steamed southward New Year's Day, with her hot water heaters roaring, and arrived here January 12, when her owners moved aboard. But on January 22, cruising with a large party aboard, "Alimar" punctured her bottom on one of the treacherous snags that occasionally root themselves on the floor of the waterway. Her skipper quickly nosed "Alimar" into the bank. After discharging her passengers, she was taken to the yard for repairs.

The massive 107-foot diesel yacht, "Osceola," sailed to Nassau with Mrs. James Norris of Lake Forest, Ill., and her party aboard, and returned to her Australian berth a couple of weeks later.

Dr. Armand Hammer's 75-foot "Shadow Isle," an Australian perennial from New York, cruised to Miami for a shipyard session.

The beamy white steamer-like "Captiva" cruised to Key Largo for three days with her owner, J. A. Martino of New York, and his wife aboard.

Benson Ford's gleaming 58-foot Burger, "Onika," steamed with her owner's family on local cruises and fishing trips in January.

"Rumak III," owned by William McKelvy of Pittsburgh, Pa., another January arrival at Australian Avenue, has been joined by Mr. and Mrs. McKelvy.

One of the Brazilian dock's busiest boats was Louis A. Ferguson's "Last Buccaneer." Committee boat for the IWFA tournament, she was given leave by her co-captain, Mrs. Ferguson, IWFA publicity director, to plan a restful, forgetful cruise to the Keys during February.

"Sea Chest," George Frank's 67-foot cruising houseboat, reached Brazilian docks after cruising down the Mississippi from the Franks' family home in Pleasant Valley, Iowa.

"Clare H IV," the beautifully-appointed 55-foot Trumpy houseboat owned by Harold and Clara Heermann of Longport, N. J., cruised to Stuart with the owner and his guest, Noel Seeburg of Chicago aboard. Later, she cruised to the Keys with her owner and his wife.

"Clare's" sister ship, the equally lovely "Francis T," cruised to Stuart from her Brazilian pier with her owners, Mr. and Mrs. J. McRoberts of Spring Lake, N. J. Mr. McRoberts, who flies North periodically, returned later for a week's cruise on "Francis T."

"Aurora III," the 55-foot Trumpy houseboat, reached the foot of Brazilian Avenue with her designer-builder-owner, John Trumpy, aboard. She cruised to Miami and has since returned to Palm Beach.

The snowy 60-foot yawl, "Josephine III," owned by Thomas T. Petzold of Detroit, Mich., sailed to the Bahamas this month for the second time this Winter.

The Brazilian dock's most handsome sports cruiser, "Ba-Boy II," owned by Morton Fetterolf of Philadelphia, Pa., returned from a windy but delightful cruise to Key Largo and the Ocean Reef Club with her owner and his guest, M. Ott of Palm Beach, aboard.

From the stubby Peruvian dock, Aris Nyad's black beauty, "Dianaliz," cruised Lake Worth and a friendlier Stream after her cruise to the Keys.

A crimson-lacquered visitor at the Palm Beach Yacht Club was the 50-foot Rhodes yawl, "Xanadu," owned by George Arents Jr. of Stamford, Conn. En route to the Bahamas, the Japanese-built sailboat prolonged her seasonal stay in Palm Beach to be refinished.

"Charmian," a 60-foot schooner converted by Mr. and Mrs. Lionel K. Levy of Stamford, Conn., for safe cruising with their two tiny girls board, continued to cruise locally from her Yacht Club slip.

Sol Brosky's clean sports cruiser, the 50-foot "Kinnereth," of Croton-on-Hudson, made a week's cruise to the Keys with guests of her owner aboard, then Mr. Brosky cruised to the Bahamas.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Smith of Accomac, Va., owners of the 60-foot Wheeler, "Sara J IV," moved aboard at their Yacht Club slip in mid-January and have cruised to the Florida Keys.

That traveling Rhodes 77-footer, "Dragon Lady," sailed for the Bahamas from the Palm Beach Yacht Club for the month of February, with Arthur Metcalf of Boston and his guests aboard.

Col. Leon Mandel's handsome 121-foot houseboat, "Carola," of Chicago has reached her accustomed pier at the Biltmore Hotel dock.

Another Biltmore heavyweight, the 118-foot "Sea Level," cruised to Key West where she was joined by D. E. Taylor and his guests for 10 days.

The 50-foot racing yawl, "Xanadu," owned by George Arents of Stamford, Conn., sets a gaily striped spinnaker in smooth seas off the Palm Beach Inlet. This Rhodes-designed Japanese-built beauty made her seasonal stop at the Palm Beach Yacht Club recently en route to Ft. Lauderdale and the Bahamas.
